TWO MEN CAUSED SOME EXCITEMENT

Dr. W. J. Taylor Rushed Up to Neal and Announced That He Had

POWER AS DEPUTY SHERIFF

Presumably Placed Him Under Arrest and They Went to an Office.

$1 25 BILL CAUSED THE TROUBLE

People on upper Washington street were startled at about 3:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon to see Dr. W. J. Taylor rush up behind F. M. Neal, and, laying his hand heavily upon his shoulder, declared in a loud voice that he was a deputy sheriff and would place him under arrest for obtaining money under false pretense.

Taylor conducted his prisoner up the stairs to the second story of the Hotel Grand building, and into the office of E. W. Hill, where for about an hour the two men indulged in some very strong language, in which dishonesty, fraud, thief, liar and many other like epithets played a prominent part.

As near as could be learned the whole affair was caused by Neal attempting to collect $1 25 claimed due for work.

Neal is a painter and had a contract with Taylor to paint a house in the alley between Third and Fourth streets, and was to receive $138 for the job.

When he had completed the job he was asked to go to Fourth street and paint the spouting on another house belonging to the doctor. For this work Neal presented a bill for $1 25, and yesterday afternoon went to the physician's office for the purpose of collecting it. Taylor fired him out, and not satisfied with this, followed him up Washington street and arrested him as stated above.

The doctor was very much excited, and after thinking the matter over concluded it might be best to pay the amount.

The two men furnished amusement for several persons while they accused each other of being dishonest. Meanwhile every one was trying to figure out how a man could be arrested for obtaining money under false pretense until he got the money.

Taylor finally asked that a receipt be made out for $1 25, which was done, and as he brandished the coin in the air, declared in a tragic manner that it was "the dishonestest" money he ever paid.

Justice McLane this afternoon heard the case of Philip Dufford against William Brookes for possession of a mackintosh overcoat, valued at $7 50.

FARR LOST.

Jury Returned a Verdict for $40 in Favor of Mrs. Celina Chamberlain.

Lisbon, Nov. 16.—(Special.)—The jury today returned a verdict for $40 against Constable Emmett E. Farr, of Middletown township, in favor of Celina Chamberlain, of St. Clair township.

Mrs. Chamberlain wanted a verdict for $300, which she claimed was due her for unlawful detention of property.

The case grew out of the domestic difficulty of the plaintiff and the late Jacob Chamberlain. Three years ago the latter sought to replevin certain household goods which were in the possession of Mrs. Chamberlain, and when the matter was taken to common pleas court the property was decreed to belong to the plaintiff.

TWO MEN CAUSED SOME EXCITEMENT

Dr. W. J. Taylor Rushed Up to Neal and Announced That He Had

POWER AS DEPUTY SHERIFF

Presumably Placed Him Under Arrest and They Went to an Office.

$1 25 BILL CAUSED THE TROUBLE

People on upper Washington street were startled at about 3:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon to see Dr. W. J. Taylor rush up behind F. M. Neal, and, laying his hand heavily upon his shoulder, declared in a loud voice that he was a deputy sheriff and would place him under arrest for obtaining money under false pretense.

Taylor conducted his prisoner up the stairs to the second story of the Hotel Grand building, and into the office of E. W. Hill, where for about an hour the two men indulged in some very strong language, in which dishonesty, fraud, thief, liar and many other like epithets played a prominent part.

As near as could be learned the whole affair was caused by Neal attempting to collect $1 25 claimed due for work.

Neal is a painter and had a contract with Taylor to paint a house in the alley between Third and Fourth streets, and was to receive $138 for the job.

When he had completed the job he was asked to go to Fourth street and paint the spouting on another house belonging to the doctor. For this work Neal presented a bill for $1 25, and yesterday afternoon went to the physician's office for the purpose of collecting it. Taylor fired him out, and not satisfied with this, followed him up Washington street and arrested him as stated above.

The doctor was very much excited, and after thinking the matter over concluded it might be best to pay the amount.

The two men furnished amusement for several persons while they accused each other of being dishonest. Meanwhile every one was trying to figure out how a man could be arrested for obtaining money under false pretense until he got the money.

Taylor finally asked that a receipt be made out for $1 25, which was done, and as he brandished the coin in the air, declared in a tragic manner that it was "the dishonestest" money he ever paid.

Reserved the Decision.

After hearing the testimony the squire concluded to reserve his decision until tomorrow.

A Candidate Here.

Moving to His New House.

W. L. Smith is moving into his new residence on Sixth street.

SOME MORE LIGHT ON GREEN STORY

The Mother of Laura Green Went to Salem In Search of Her Daughter.

SHE DON'T BELIEVE STORY

That the Shooting Was Accidential but Thinks a Jealous Man Did It.

FULL HISTORY OF THE EPISODE

That Salem shooting affair is still as big a mystery as ever, although the Salem Herald of yesterday throws some light on it.

The article is as follows:

Another chapter was added in the West Main street shooting affair this morning, when Mrs. Mary E. Green, of 128 Locust alley, East Liverpool, arrived in the city on the early train to search for her wayward daughter, Miss Laura Green, the 17-year-old girl who was shot in the left arm Monday morning in the wine rooms of the building leased by Kaplan & Margolies.

Mrs. Green called at the mayor's office to inquire about her daughter, but did not receive much information, as none of the officials knew much about the case.

Mrs. Green stated to a Herald reporter this morning that her daughter was supposed to have eloped with Harry Cunningham, a married man of East Liverpool, last July. Since that time Mrs. Green's efforts to find her erring daughter have been futile.

Yesterday she learned for the first time that her daughter was in Salem, when she read an article in an East Liverpool paper, telling of the shooting affair. The article had been copied from the Herald. Mrs. Green telephoned to the Broadway hotel last night and asked for her daughter. Miss Green was there, but refused to talk to her mother. This made Mrs. Green decide to come to Salem and get her daughter, if possible. She left East Liverpool at 5 o'clock this morning.

Today Mrs. Green said that Cunningham had been intimate with her daughter since she was 14 years old, having known him since childhood. Cunningham, who is a "batter out" at the pottery, was married about four years ago to an estimable young lady. Their married life was unhappy, and they have since separated. Last spring Cunningham and Miss Green worked side by side in a pottery at East Liverpool. Their relations became so intimate that her mother took Laura away from the pottery. Cunningham, it is alleged, heard that Laura's mother intended to have him arrested. A few days later Cunningham and Miss Green were missing. When Cunningham was away before this time a secret correspondence is said to have been carried on between him and Miss Green.

This morning Mrs. Green, in company with a Herald reporter, paid a visit to the scene of the shooting affray. The shooting occurred in the wine rooms in Kaplan & Margolies, and not in the apartments of the family, who live overhead the saloon. In the apartment upstairs are three tables, some chairs and a bed. There are no other furnishings. The neighbors say this place is frequented by dissolute characters of the city, and fights are not infrequent.

A number of people were questioned about the affair, but little light was learned except what has already been published. The girls still claim that the shooting was accidental, and that Miss Maggie Miller did it. Other parties say that Miss Green told them it was a man from Sebring who shot her. Mrs. Green, mother of the girl, thinks it was Cunningham, but no evidence has been secured yet to go ahead with the case. Many conflicting stories are told.

Last night Miss Green slept at the residence of her friend, Miss Maggie Miller, in Hogan's alley, and left early this morning for her home in East Liverpool. At that place she was interviewed by a reporter. She still claimed that the shooting was accidental and said "Sidney" Miller, ex-manager of the Salem ball club, was in the room with his sister at the time of the shooting.

Mrs. Green blames Cunningham as the cause of her daughter's downfall, and did not hesitate to say that she disbelieved the story told her to the effect that Miss Miller had done the shooting accidentally, but clings to the belief that Cunningham in a fit of jealousy was the guilty one.

She left for her home in East Liverpool this afternoon.

NIGHT WORK FOR SCHOOL CHILDREN

Superintendent Samuel Andrews, of Pittsburg, Heartily Disapproves of the System.

HE GIVES GOOD REASONS

Children Should Not Be Worried With Thought of Study After School Hours.

THEY NEED SEVEN FREE HOURS

The following in regard to night work for school children will be read with interest by many people in this city:

The central board of education of Pittsburg last night approved the recommendation of the high school committee that the periods of study in the Southside high school be increased from three periods to four periods each day. This, in an indirect way, means the approval of the determination of Director C. B. Wood, of the Pittsburg Central high school, to do away with night study on the part of the students.

"The best children, the best citizens, the best people generally, are those who have a regular allottment of time for work, for recreation and for sleep." The speaker was Samuel Andrews, city superintendent of the Pittsburg public school.

"I mean best in a wholesale sense; best physically, mentally, morally. I am as thoroughly convinced that this division of time is a necessity for a perfect development as I am of the fact that food is required for the nourishment of the body. Our school children should have a certain number of hours for their mental work, they should have a certain number of hours for sleep, they should have at least seven absolutely free hours each day for recreation or duties the very opposite in every respect to those classed as work.

"If school hours are in excess of a fair allotment of the day, then it is a criminal proceeding to give a child even one study to prepare at home. If school hours are shorter than a fair working division of the time then one or two studies for home work might not come amiss.

"I am opposed to night study; strongly opposed. If I had my way I would eliminate every thought of school life from the home life of the child. It is not the work so much as the worry which is undermining the health of the children.

"A child who carries home a book and knows that a lesson is to be prepared, is burdened with a sense of that duty until he goes to bed. The thought of the lesson intrudes on his play hours, while he is doing his errands or little chores, while he is eating or apparently lazily lounging about.

"Who are the successful business men of the times, the best men physically, the hopeful and progressive citizen? Certainly not those who carry their business cares and worries into the heart of their homes. Recreation is not necessarily idleness. The boy who is not hampered with the thought of unprepared lessons will utilize his leisure time to suit his individual taste. He will be free to whittle, to construct, to plan, even to dream. He will become an individual instead of an overworked machine.

"In justice to our schools, I may say that we are lessening the night strain as fast as possible. In several schools the teachers understand that night work must be of light character, where it is given at all. It is also becoming generally understood by the teachers that home work which imposes upon others of the family is a reflection upon the ability of the teacher. Tasks which can only be accomplished under direction and supervision esssentially belong to the school room. The parents are grasping this thought and the sensible teacher is quick to appreciate the situation. Mathematics is a study which is much abused as an assignment of night work. If night work must be given at all, which I greatly question in view of the fact that many of our more successful teachers have proved it unnecessary. I insist that it shall be memory or hand work, such as geography, history or drawing, and not the study that causes the more excessive mental strain and which at best is uncertain in results until a superior brain has passed upon its merits.

"I am heartily in accord with the spirit of the movement for the lessening of night study for the high school students. I hope the experiment will prove a success. It is only a question of time, however, until there is a total elimination of night work from the city schools. Public sentiment demands it and those at the helm are now devising ways and means of bringing about the reform."

Superintendent Jones, of the Cleveland schools, has started a similar reform in that city.

VASTNESS OF ST. PETER'S.

Large Objects Appear Small In the Great Cathedral.

During a recent ceremony in St. Peter's, Rome, one of the crystal chandeliers suspended from the ceiling began to creak ominously, and the people beneath it hastily scattered. In a moment the mass fell and was dashed into a thousand pieces on the floor below. In St. Peter's a few days before when the workmen were suspending these chandeliers they were taking them out of piles of numbered boxes, for St. Peter's, like a theater, has many "properties" and is decked in a different manner for its different ceremonials.

Cords run over pulleys fastened far up aloft, and with these the chandeliers were hoisted to their places. St Peter's is so enormous that the eye there is continually deceived. The chubby cherubs at the holy water font look to be the size of ordinary babies, yet they are nearly seven feet tall, and a man standing beside them looks like a dwarf. When the workmen were hoisting these chandeliers from the floor, a traveler noted with amazement that the masses of crystal were over eight feet high. Yet when hoisted to their places far up in the dim heights they looked about the size of a man's head.

Workmen in St. Peter's are called "sanpietrini." They take their name from the basilica "San Pietro"—"sanpietrino," plural "sanpietrini." They have a set of lofty scaffolds mounted on rollers. These they move from place to place about the vast church. They are not unlike our fire departments' water towers. Ladder after ladder runs up the scaffolding, and by their aid they reach places from 100 to 150 feet above the floor. Other ingenious scaffoldings are used for work on the inside of the dome. Seen up there the "sanpietrini" look like flies crawling on the ceiling. The top of the dome is about 400 feet above the floor.—St. Louis Republic.

An English officer in Malta stopped in riding to ask a native the way. He was answered by a shrug of the shoulders and a "No speak English."

"No."

"Do you know Arabic?"

"Do you know Greek?"

NIGHT WORK FOR SCHOOL CHILDREN

Superintendent Samuel Andrews, of Pittsburg, Heartily Disapproves of the System.

HE GIVES GOOD REASONS

Children Should Not Be Worried With Thought of Study After School Hours.

THEY NEED SEVEN FREE HOURS

The following in regard to night work for school children will be read with interest by many people in this city:

The central board of education of Pittsburg last night approved the recommendation of the high school committee that the periods of study in the Southside high school be increased from three periods to four periods each day. This, in an indirect way, means the approval of the determination of Director C. B. Wood, of the Pittsburg Central high school, to do away with night study on the part of the students.

"The best children, the best citizens, the best people generally, are those who have a regular allottment of time for work, for recreation and for sleep." The speaker was Samuel Andrews, city superintendent of the Pittsburg public school.

"I mean best in a wholesale sense; best physically, mentally, morally. I am as thoroughly convinced that this division of time is a necessity for a perfect development as I am of the fact that food is required for the nourishment of the body. Our school children should have a certain number of hours for their mental work, they should have a certain number of hours for sleep, they should have at least seven absolutely free hours each day for recreation or duties the very opposite in every respect to those classed as work.

"If school hours are in excess of a fair allotment of the day, then it is a criminal proceeding to give a child even one study to prepare at home. If school hours are shorter than a fair working division of the time then one or two studies for home work might not come amiss.

"I am opposed to night study; strongly opposed. If I had my way I would eliminate every thought of school life from the home life of the child. It is not the work so much as the worry which is undermining the health of the children.

"A child who carries home a book and knows that a lesson is to be prepared, is burdened with a sense of that duty until he goes to bed. The thought of the lesson intrudes on his play hours, while he is doing his errands or little chores, while he is eating or apparently lazily lounging about.

"Who are the successful business men of the times, the best men physically, the hopeful and progressive citizen? Certainly not those who carry their business cares and worries into the heart of their homes. Recreation is not necessarily idleness. The boy who is not hampered with the thought of unprepared lessons will utilize his leisure time to suit his individual taste. He will be free to whittle, to construct, to plan, even to dream. He will become an individual instead of an overworked machine.

"In justice to our schools, I may say that we are lessening the night strain as fast as possible. In several schools the teachers understand that night work must be of light character, where it is given at all. It is also becoming generally understood by the teachers that home work which imposes upon others of the family is a reflection upon the ability of the teacher. Tasks which can only be accomplished under direction and supervision esssentially belong to the school room. The parents are grasping this thought and the sensible teacher is quick to appreciate the situation. Mathematics is a study which is much abused as an assignment of night work. If night work must be given at all, which I greatly question in view of the fact that many of our more successful teachers have proved it unnecessary. I insist that it shall be memory or hand work, such as geography, history or drawing, and not the study that causes the more excessive mental strain and which at best is uncertain in results until a superior brain has passed upon its merits.

"I am heartily in accord with the spirit of the movement for the lessening of night study for the high school students. I hope the experiment will prove a success. It is only a question of time, however, until there is a total elimination of night work from the city schools. Public sentiment demands it and those at the helm are now devising ways and means of bringing about the reform."

Superintendent Jones, of the Cleveland schools, has started a similar reform in that city.

OFFICIAL PAPER OF THE CITY

FRIDAY, NOVEMBER 16, 1900.

DEAD LETTERS.

The Woman's Good Citizenship League has determined to see to the enforcement of the curfew law and the law regulating child labor, and will also take a hand respecting attendance of children at our public schools. Youngsters are said to be working in our potteries right along who are under the legal age, while the accusation is made on every hand that the truant officer of the city is very negligent respecting the performance of his duties, seeming to think that he can use his own pleasure as to enforcement or non-enforcement of the law controlling the matter. The members of the league have able backing from a legal standpoint, and they state that they will see that executive officers perform the duties assigned them by the legislative bodies, or know the reason why.

JOURNALISM.

The journal which persistently and wittingly advocates evil and evil practices has no right to live and prosper in a community which believes in the enforcement of law and order; and no such journal can prosper, save when weak kneed professors of right and truth wink at said evil practices and give aid and comfort and support to journals of such a despicable and disreputable nature. If you are an honest Christian man, or even a good and clean citizen, examine your skirts and see if they are clean respecting this matter. If not, then be a man and maintain your own self-respect and the commendation of the Master by making an immediate about face. Don't look too closely at the dollar; look at the principle at stake and do you full duty. God will reward you in his own good time.

VILE HUSBANDS.

There are several notable cases of vile and bad husbands on the list in this city at the present time; men who fondly imagine that their misdeeds are done in the dark and that no one is the wiser. We have one notable case where an employe of a business man who is thus carrying on his infamous work, and who is absolutely infatuated with a soiled dove, a prominent member of the demimonde, said: "Yes, all that you say about him is gospel truth, and he is going the pace to the limit. His inomarata is playing him for a sucker to the queen's taste, and she is making ducks and drakes of his bank account; but he pays me good money for my services, and I'm not going to make a monkey of myself and give him away. He'll reach the limit after awhile, as all the smart Alec's and sports do, and there will be a rich old scandal when his better half gets on to his little game. She's had her eyes opened a little of late, as her hubby has been unusually reckless. I'll hide under the counter in case she catches on when I'm about the establishment, as she is a regular volcano when her temper gains the ascendancy."

WOMAN'S LEAGUE.

The Woman's Good Citizenship League has lately been accumulating evidence along the line of the sale of intoxicants in East Liverpool on the Sabbath day, and there will be a shaking up among the dry bones in the near future that will not soon be forgotten. The ladies purpose working through the state authorities; and they will have ample backing at the proper time. It seems that there has been an efficient detective at work in this city for some time past, and the evidence he has secured will implicate parties who have made it their boast that they have always lived up to the law. The lightning will surely strike, and some who least expect it will be very badly scorched. It is said that some prominent business houses, other than saloons, will be embraced in the category of offenders, and that they will be compelled to go out of business altogether if full penalties are imposed for each and every offense in which they are found guilty. They have been carrying their pitchers to the well for a long time in safety, and the avoidance of trouble has caused them to become bold and reckless, and now they must face the music and pay the fiddler.

THE COAL TRADE.

The trade in black diamonds is marvelous. Mines that have been idle for years, and considered as almost worthless to the owners, have been opened up and are now working to the limit, and are proving to be good mines to the happy operators. One prominent coal dealer of East Liverpool sent an order for several car loads to a famous mining company, owning several mines, and received the reply that they could not let him have a single bushel and could not fill the orders already in. Buy a coal mine. It is better than oil or diamonds. One of the leaders of the coal trade in this country, owning seven thousand acres of coal, asserts that they will not sell a pound of their product to home consumers, as they have contracts with the foreign markets for every bushel that they can possibly mine. Surely coal is king, and McKinley prosperity has come to stay. The pushing industries demand fuel.

COURTS RULED BY SUN TIME

Judges In Various States Refuse to Accept Standard Reckoning.

If you ever expect to go to law over a question in which time is involved, however slightly, don't monkey with standard time. It won't go in the courts. To be sure, you can't catch trains if you don't use standard time to do it, but you will miss the verdict if you do. In Georgia the court of appeals decided that the use of standard time instead of sun time in regulating a trial was an error. In the particular case in question the sun time was faster than the railroad time, and a verdict was received after 12 o'clock on Saturday night by the sun time, though before 12 by standard time. It was decided that sun time should have been followed.

In Nebraska a certain summons was returnable before a justice at 10 o'clock a. m. The defendant failed to appear. The justice waited until 11 o'clock standard time, which was about half an hour faster than common time, and then gave judgment by default. The defendant appeared before 11 o'clock common time, and it was held that the judgment by default was pre nature and invalid.

In Iowa there was a question as to the expiration of an insurance policy, which by its terms extended until 12 o'clock at noon of a certain day. Fire broke out at about 11:45 o'clock a. m. of that day by common time and about two and a half minutes after 12 o'clock by standard time. The court held that the insurance was still in force. It did not appear that any statute had enacted any change in the ordinary rule which regards noon as the time when the sun crosses the meridian. There was evidence of the customary use of standard time at that place, but this was held not sufficient. The court says: "It was not only necessary to show the customary use of standard time, but that by custom of the place at 12 o'clock at noon meant at 12 o'clock standard time."—Chicago Inter Ocean.

WOMAN A BEAST OF BURDEN.

Heavy Loads Carried by Italians Through New York's Streets.

It is no uncommon sight to see Italian women walking along the streets balancing burdens on their heads that the average man would prefer to have sent home on a truck. A few days ago one of these women passed through City Hall park. On her head she was carrying what appeared to be the entire woodwork from the interior of some house. The bundle was made up of eight pieces of hard wood, the shortest being fully 12 feet in length. Each piece was six inches in width and an inch thick. The woman steadied this burden with one hand, while in the other she carried what one would consider a good load for one person in the shape of a bundle of shorter pieces of wood.

As she turned into Center street, near Chambers, the end of the load of lumber on her head came in contact with the head of a man who was going in the opposite direction. In order to prevent hitting him too hard the woman tried to turn to one side, and as she did so her burden fell to the walk. In vain she tried to replace it on her head. At last two men took hold of it, one at each end. They found that even their combined strength was just sufficient to lift it up and place it on the woman's head again. When the wood was finally adjusted in a proper position the woman picked up her smaller bundle and started up Center street.—New York Times.

Acorns as Charming Ornaments.

Take a large acorn, suspend it by a thread so as to nearly touch the water in any glass vessel, set it upon your mantelshelf, bracket or table, and let it stand there for about two months without in any way interfering with it excepting to supply fresh water.

The acorn will burst, throw a root down into the water and a stem upward, sending out from the stem beautiful green leaves.—Home Notes.

Life Saving Pigs.

The Australian coasting steamer Kameruka, while going from Eden to Sydney, traveling at full speed, struck on a reef at Moruya head. There being no rockets on the ship, the captain tied a life line to some pigs which formed part of the cargo and had the animals put overboard. The pigs swam to the shore, taking the line with them, and by establishing communication every soul on board was rescued.

OFFICIAL PAPER OF THE CITY

FRIDAY, NOVEMBER 16, 1900.

DEAD LETTERS.

The Woman's Good Citizenship League has determined to see to the enforcement of the curfew law and the law regulating child labor, and will also take a hand respecting attendance of children at our public schools. Youngsters are said to be working in our potteries right along who are under the legal age, while the accusation is made on every hand that the truant officer of the city is very negligent respecting the performance of his duties, seeming to think that he can use his own pleasure as to enforcement or non-enforcement of the law controlling the matter. The members of the league have able backing from a legal standpoint, and they state that they will see that executive officers perform the duties assigned them by the legislative bodies, or know the reason why.

JOURNALISM.

The journal which persistently and wittingly advocates evil and evil practices has no right to live and prosper in a community which believes in the enforcement of law and order; and no such journal can prosper, save when weak kneed professors of right and truth wink at said evil practices and give aid and comfort and support to journals of such a despicable and disreputable nature. If you are an honest Christian man, or even a good and clean citizen, examine your skirts and see if they are clean respecting this matter. If not, then be a man and maintain your own self-respect and the commendation of the Master by making an immediate about face. Don't look too closely at the dollar; look at the principle at stake and do you full duty. God will reward you in his own good time.

VILE HUSBANDS.

There are several notable cases of vile and bad husbands on the list in this city at the present time; men who fondly imagine that their misdeeds are done in the dark and that no one is the wiser. We have one notable case where an employe of a business man who is thus carrying on his infamous work, and who is absolutely infatuated with a soiled dove, a prominent member of the demimonde, said: "Yes, all that you say about him is gospel truth, and he is going the pace to the limit. His inomarata is playing him for a sucker to the queen's taste, and she is making ducks and drakes of his bank account; but he pays me good money for my services, and I'm not going to make a monkey of myself and give him away. He'll reach the limit after awhile, as all the smart Alec's and sports do, and there will be a rich old scandal when his better half gets on to his little game. She's had her eyes opened a little of late, as her hubby has been unusually reckless. I'll hide under the counter in case she catches on when I'm about the establishment, as she is a regular volcano when her temper gains the ascendancy."

EX-OFFICIAL GONE.

Presley Hay Disappears From Findlay.

ALLEGED SHORT IN ACCOUNTS.

Had Been Three Times Elected Clerk, of of Hancock County (O.) Courts—Retired From Th rd Ter n In September—Court Had Hoped Relatives Would Settle.

Findlay, O., Nov. 16.—Presley Hay, three times elected clerk of the Hancock county courts, has disappeared. It is alleged that he is short in his accounts. Mr. Hay retired from his third term in September. The installation of his successor drew attention to the alleged shortage. The court, it is said, has been cognizant for some time of the matter, but hoped his relatives would supply any deficiency. The work of looking into the accounts has barely begun. Hay has a large family, who are social leaders.

AGREEMENT ON ARMOR.

Secretary Long Announces Arrangement With Carnegie and Bethlehem Companies—Large Amount Needed.

Washington, Nv. 16.—Secretary Long announced the conclusion of the long controversy over the price of armor plate for naval vessels, and an agreement with the Carnegie and Bethlehem companies for Krupp armor at $420 a ton, with the possible addition of royalty fees, making the maximum price $455.52 a ton.

The amount of armor involved is the largest ever placed at one time by the government up to 1896. It covers the armor for 17 ships now in various stages of construction, including eight battleships, six armored cruisers and three protected cruisers.

The Midvale company withdrew its bid.

ONE MAY BE FATALLY HURT.

House Destroyed by Gas Explosion—Others Injured.

Pitsburg, Nov. 16.—An explosion of natural gas in the house at No. 1010 Carson street, South Side, caused the fatal injury of one person, painful burns to two others, and the total destruction of a two-story brick dwelling. The following were injured:

Joseph Dobson, 38 years old; frightfully burned about the face and body; supposed to have inhaled the flames; will probably die.

Mrs. Annie Dobson, wife of Joseph Dobson; burned about the face and hands; her condition is serious, and she may not recover.

The gas had escaped from a rent in a rubber hose attached to a stove. When a match was lit the explosion occurred.

DEAD WOMAN IDENTIFIED.

Husband Believes Dr. Ahlstrom Drugged Her and Then Suicided.

New York, Nov. 16.—The woman who was found dead in a room in the Boulevard hotel, together with Dr. Ahlstrom, was identified as Mrs. Harry Gardner, of 109 West One Hundred and First street, the wife of a man who followed the races.

Mrs. Gardner's mother, it was learned, lived in Chicago. When the husband of the woman was found near his flat he said he was out looking for her, after he had failed to find her at home. When he saw her picture printed he identified it as that of his wife. The couple were married in 1893 and lived in Ohio before they went to Chicago. Gardner's brother was a patient of Dr. Ahlstrom. Gardner thought the doctor fond of his wife, but never suspected her fidelity. He believes she was lured to the hotel by Ahlstrom and drugged and that Ahlstrom becoming alarmed killed her. The autopsy showed that death in both cases was caused by gas asphyxiation.

JAMES S. BARBER DEAD.

Mrs. McKinley's Nephew Expired of Typhoid Fever, at Hongkong—Was Connected With Navy.

Washington, Nov. 16.—News was received here of the death from typhoid fever of Mrs. McKinley's nephew, Assistant Paymaster J. S. Barber, at Hongkong. The news came in the form of a dispatch to the navy department from the commander of the Monterey, to which young Barber was attached.

News of the death was conveyed to the white house personally by Captain Cowles, acting chief of the navigation bureau, and caused great grief to Mrs. McKinley and the president.

Mr. Barber entered the Ohio volunteers at the outbreak of the Spanish war as a private, with his cousin, James McKinley, and was commended for gallant conduct. He was mustered out at the end of the war and when he recovered his strength, which had been shattered by the exposure and hard service to which he had been subjected, he was given a commission in the navy as an assistant paymaster. He was ordered to the Philippines at his own request, being attached to the Don Juan de Austria. Afterward he was transferred to the monitor Monterey, but in the summer his health again gave way and he had been lying ill with typhoid fever at Hongkong for several weeks past.

CARNEGIE'S NEW GIFT.

Announces He Will Present Pittsburg With a Technical School.

Pittsburg, Nov. 16.—Andrew Carnegie will now present Pittsburg with enough money to build and equip a technical school. At the banquet tendered him by President W. N. Frew, of the board of trustees of the Carnegie institute, at the Hotel Schenley last night, a letter to Mayor Diehl offering the gift was read. Mr. Carnegie offers to provide the money for the school, provided the city shall furnish the site. He also offers to endow the school with $1,000,000 5 per cent gold bonds, which would yield an income of $50,000.

Action Against Strong Executors.

New York, Nov. 16.—Judge Lacombe, of the United States circuit court, on the application of Eliza T. Griswold, of Philadelphia, granted a temporary injunction against Mary C. Strong, P. Bradley Strong and Albert R. Shattuck, individually and as executors and trustees of the will of the late William L. Strong, which restrains them from parting with or disposing of certain mortgages, bonds, stocks and other securities claimed by the complainant. The matter was later amicably adjusted and was said to be merely to protect property.

He Was Fresh.

"Have you any nice fresh eggs today?" asked the woman with business like ways.

"Madam," answered the man, who has just started in the grocery business, "permit me to remind you that nice eggs are necessarily fresh and fresh eggs are always nice. Moreover, if I have any, I have them today. My possession of eggs yesterday or tomorrow does not in the slightest degree affect the situation. Therefore, time being precious to a business man, I will simply content myself with replying that I have nice eggs."—Washington Star.

The Movements In Some Stocks—Total Exports For October Greater Than Ever In Country's History.

New York, Nov. 16.—General Electric Thursday duplicated its gain of Wednesday with another six point rise, carrying it o 160½ on he large earnings reported. Wednesday's strength in the coalers became largely localized in New Jersey Central, which was up at one time 4½ points on reports of coming increase in dividends. The movement of broadcast scope for the day was in the winter wheat, which advanced between 1 and 2 points all around on the good weather for the crop in that territory. The movement in Great Northern preferred and in Union Pacific was attributed to the report of a working agreement looking to the extension of traffic in each other's territory. Northern Pacific, after a rather slight advance, fell back to about Wednesday night's level. Consolidated Gas, Continental Tobacco, People's Gas, Tennessee Coal, Brooklyn Transit and some other specialties were strong in the same way. London bought a small number of stocks on balance.

Money was appreciably easier and a favorable bank statement on Saturday was beginning to be discounted. The sub-treasury operations have contributed about $2,500,000 to the market, by reason of the falling off in internal revenue colections and large disbursements for pensions. Reports from interior money markets are of easy conditions, due to a process of unloosening after the election, similar to that which occurred in the New York market. Arrivals of over $3,000,000 in Australian gold are expected in San Francisco in a few days, which can be made available by telegraphic transfer through the sub-treasuries to the cash reserves of New York banks. There is a feeling that the large war loans impending in England and Germany will probably not be offered early next year. The total exports, as well as the excess of exports, over imports for October was far greater than those for any previous month in the country's history, the excess of exports showing the astounding total of $92,475,226. The phenomenal cotton exports are largely responsible for this showing, but after allowing for this the gratifying fact is shown that the value of manufactured products exported shows an increase over October of last year of nearly $9,000,000.

The bond market was of the same character as the stock market, showing strength, but not at the high level of last week's activity. Total sales, par value, $2,760,000.

United States Refunding 2s and the 5s coupon declined 8 per cent and do registered and the old 4s ¼ per cent on the last call.

Lieutenant Punished For Drunkenness.

Washington, Nov. 16.—A court martial convicted Lieutenant Patrick Hourigan of intoxication at Lisbon, and sentenced him to dismissal, but recommended clemency, so Secretary Long has commuted the sentence to reduction to the foot of the list of lieutenants in the navy, amounting to the loss of about 200 numbers.

Kills the Song.

Clifton Bingham, the author of "In Old Madrid," "Love's Old Sweet Song" and "The Dear Homeland," once said: "The moment a song is put 'on the streets,' as we call it, it becomes tremendously popular. You hear it everywhere. Every boy hums it as he goes to school. It is played in every street. But my publisher shakes his head sadly when that day comes. It is generally the beginning of the end—a boom which dies away. People get tired of hearing the same song wherever they go, whatever the song may be, and the song of the barrel organ is not welcome in the drawing room. So that the putting of a song on the street organs means a fleeting fame, and then—well, too often an utter relapse and complete oblivion."

Morphy's Witty Comment.

Paul Morphy, the famous chess player, once attended church in New Orleans when the bishop of a foreign diocese was present. The young rector of the church had prepared a sermon in honor of his distinguished visitor in the delivery of which he tired every one except the bishop, who paid close attention. Part of the congregation left the church.

"Well," said Morphy, "that preacher is the first man I ever met who hadn't sense enough to stop when he had nothing left but a bishop."

EX-OFFICIAL GONE.

Presley Hay Disappears From Findlay.

ALLEGED SHORT IN ACCOUNTS.

Had Been Three Times Elected Clerk, of of Hancock County (O.) Courts—Retired From Third Term in September—Court Had Hoped Relatives Would Settle.

Findlay, O., Nov. 16.—Presley Hay, three times elected clerk of the Hancock county courts, has disappeared. It is alleged that he is short in his accounts. Mr. Hay retired from his third term in September. The installation of his successor drew attention to the alleged shortage. The court, it is said, has been cognizant for some time of the matter, but hoped his relatives would supply any deficiency. The work of looking into the accounts has barely begun. Hay has a large family, who are social leaders.

AGREEMENT ON ARMOR.

Secretary Long Announces Arrangement With Carnegie and Bethlehem Companies—Large Amount Needed.

Washington, Nv. 16.—Secretary Long announced the conclusion of the long controversy over the price of armor plate for naval vessels, and an agreement with the Carnegie and Bethlehem companies for Krupp armor at $420 a ton, with the possible addition of royalty fees, making the maximum price $455.52 a ton.

The amount of armor involved is the largest ever placed at one time by the government up to 1896. It covers the armor for 17 ships now in various stages of construction, including eight battleships, six armored cruisers and three protected cruisers.

The Midvale company withdrew its bid.

ONE MAY BE FATALLY HURT.

House Destroyed by Gas Explosion—Others Injured.

Pitsburg, Nov. 16.—An explosion of natural gas in the house at No. 1010 Carson street, South Side, caused the fatal injury of one person, painful burns to two others, and the total destruction of a two-story brick dwelling. The following were injured:

Joseph Dobson, 38 years old; frightfully burned about the face and body; supposed to have inhaled the flames; will probably die.

Mrs. Annie Dobson, wife of Joseph Dobson; burned about the face and hands; her condition is serious, and she may not recover.

DEAD WOMAN IDENTIFIED.

Husband Believes Dr. Ahlstrom Drugged Her and Then Suicided.

New York, Nov. 16.—The woman who was found dead in a room in the Boulevard hotel, together with Dr. Ahlstrom, was identified as Mrs. Harry Gardner, of 109 West One Hundred and First street, the wife of a man who followed the races.

Mrs. Gardner's mother, it was learned, lived in Chicago. When the husband of the woman was found near his flat he said he was out looking for her, after he had failed to find her at home. When he saw her picture printed he identified it as that of his wife. The couple were married in 1893 and lived in Ohio before they went to Chicago. Gardner's brother was a patient of Dr. Ahlstrom. Gardner thought the doctor fond of his wife, but never suspected her fidelity. He believes she was lured to the hotel by Ahlstrom and drugged and that Ahlstrom becoming alarmed killed her. The autopsy showed that death in both cases was caused by gas asphyxiation.

THE PARSONS FACTION OFFICERS.

One K. of L. Convention Elected Parsons Master Workman, Also Other Officers.

O'Keefe, Birmingham, Ala.; J. A. Conner, Pittsburg, and W. B. Carr, of Washington, D. C. A. J. O'Keefe was elected editor of The National Journal, published at Washington, D. C. Henry A. Hicks, of New York, was expelled from the order on the allegation that he filled places of striking electricians in New York city with non-union men.

JAMES S. BARBER DEAD.

Mrs. McKinley's Nephew Expired of Typhoid Fever, at Hongkong—Was Connected With Navy.

Washington, Nov. 16.—News was received here of the death from typhoid fever of Mrs. McKinley's nephew, Assistant Paymaster J. S. Barber, at Hongkong. The news came in the form of a dispatch to the navy department from the commander of the Monterey, to which young Barber was attached.

News of the death was conveyed to the white house personally by Captain Cowles, acting chief of the navigation bureau, and caused great grief to Mrs. McKinley and the president.

Mr. Barber entered the Ohio volunteers at the outbreak of the Spanish war as a private, with his cousin, James McKinley, and was commended for gallant conduct. He was mustered out at the end of the war and when he recovered his strength, which had been shattered by the exposure and hard service to which he had been subjected, he was given a commission in the navy as an assistant paymaster. He was ordered to the Philippines at his own request, being attached to the Don Juan de Austria. Afterward he was transferred to the monitor Monterey, but in the summer his health again gave way and he had been lying ill with typhoid fever at Hongkong for several weeks past.

TRIBUTE TO CIVIL WAR HEROES.

Rev. Father McManus Read a Poem by Durkan—Monument Unveiled.

Scranton, Pa., Nov. 16.—Lackawanna's beautiful tribute to her heroes of the civil war, a masive $50,000 memorial shaft, was unveiled with appropriate ceremonies. A parade occurred.

At the unveiling services there were addresses by A. B. Stevens, of Scranton; Hon. Thomas Sample, of Allegheny; Homer Green, of Honesdale; Judge Alfred Drake, of Wilkesbarre, and Rev. P. J. McManus, of St. Paul's Roman Catholic church, Green Ridge. Rev. Father McManus read a dedicatory poem, written for the occasion by Prof. Patrick F. Durkan, of Scranton.

CARNEGIE'S NEW GIFT.

Announces He Will Present Pittsburg With a Technical School.

Pittsburg, Nov. 16.—Andrew Carnegie will now present Pittsburg with enough money to build and equip a technical school. At the banquet tendered him by President W. N. Frew, of the board of trustees of the Carnegie institute, at the Hotel Schenley last night, a letter to Mayor Diehl offering the gift was read. Mr. Carnegie offers to provide the money for the school, provided the city shall furnish the site. He also offers to endow the school with $1,000,000 5 per cent gold bonds, which would yield an income of $50,000.

Action Against Strong Executors.

New York, Nov. 16.—Judge Lacombe, of the United States circuit court, on the application of Eliza T. Griswold, of Philadelphia, granted a temporary injunction against Mary C. Strong, P. Bradley Strong and Albert R. Shattuck, individually and as executors and trustees of the will of the late William L. Strong, which restrains them from parting with or disposing of certain mortgages, bonds, stocks and other securities claimed by the complainant. The matter was later amicably adjusted and was said to be merely to protect property.

He Was Fresh.

"Have you any nice fresh eggs today?" asked the woman with business like ways.

"Madam," answered the man, who has just started in the grocery business, "permit me to remind you that nice eggs are necessarily fresh and fresh eggs are always nice. Moreover, if I have any, I have them today. My possession of eggs yesterday or tomorrow does not in the slightest degree affect the situation. Therefore, time being precious to a business man, I will simply content myself with replying that I have nice eggs."—Washington Star.

14 Shipwrecked Seamen Rescued.

Philadelphia, Nov. 16.—After floating on the ocean in a helpless condition on a sinking vessel for five days, Captain Anderson and his crew of 13 hands of the Norwegian bark Highflyer arrived here, having been rescued by the British steamer Georgian Prince, Captain Flett, from Hull.

Prince Tuan Reported to Have Rebelled.

Berlin, Nov. 16.—The news that Prince Tuan and General Tung Fu Hsiang had rebelled was greeted here as a favorable sign.

New York, Nov. 16.—General Electric Thursday duplicated its gain of Wednesday with another six point rise, carrying it o 160½ on he large earnings reported. Wednesday's strength in the coalers became largely localized in New Jersey Central, which was up at one time 4½ points on reports of coming increase in dividends. The movement of broadcast scope for the day was in the winter wheat, which advanced between 1 and 2 points all around on the good weather for the crop in that territory. The movement in Great Northern preferred and in Union Pacific was attributed to the report of a working agreement looking to the extension of traffic in each other's territory. Northern Pacific, after a rather slight advance, fell back to about Wednesday night's level. Consolidated Gas, Continental Tobacco, People's Gas, Tennessee Coal, Brooklyn Transit and some other specialties were strong in the same way. London bought a small number of stocks on balance.

Money was appreciably easier and a favorable bank statement on Saturday was beginning to be discounted. The sub-treasury operations have contributed about $2,500,000 to the market, by reason of the falling off in internal revenue colections and large disbursements for pensions. Reports from interior money markets are of easy conditions, due to a process of unloosening after the election, similar to that which occurred in the New York market. Arrivals of over $3,000,000 in Australian gold are expected in San Francisco in a few days, which can be made available by telegraphic transfer through the sub-treasuries to the cash reserves of New York banks. There is a feeling that the large war loans impending in England and Germany will probably not be offered early next year. The total exports, as well as the excess of exports, over imports for October was far greater than those for any previous month in the country's history, the excess f exports showing the astounding total of $92,475,228. The phenomenal cotton exports are largely responsible for this showing, but after allowing for this the gratifying fact is shown that the value of manufactured products exported shows an increase over October of last year of nearly $9,000,000.

The bond market was of the same character as the stock market, showing strength, but not at the high level of last week's activity. Total sales, par value, $2,760,000.

United States Refunding 2s and the 5s coupon declined 8 per cent and do registered and the old 4s ¼ per cent on the last call.

Lieutenant Punished For Drunkenness.

Washington, Nov. 16.—A court martial convicted Lieutenant Patrick Hourigan of intoxication at Lisbon, and sentenced him to dismissal, but recommended clemency, so Secretary Long has commuted the sentence to reduction to the foot of the list of lieutenants in the navy, amounting to the loss of about 200 numbers.

EVENTS IN BRIEF.

Society Army of Tennessee re-elected officers, Detroit.

Heavy snow in Northeaster Ohio.

Minister Corea, of Nicaragua, returned to Washington. Says things are clear for governmental consideration of Nicaraguan canal, private claims having been cleared away.

Frank Alderman, prominent Fort Wayne citizen, suicided.

KING OSCAR VERY ILL.

Seems Unable to Recuperate From Brain Attack—Memory Gone.

Paris, Nov. 16.—Private but most trustworthy information has been received here to the effect that King Oscar, of Sweden, is in a very low state of health. His recent brain attack, it is said, deprived him of his memory and he seems unable to recuperate. The facts are being suppressed.

Republican Headquartrs In Washington.

Washington, Nov. 16.—Within two weeks Republican national headquarters will be opened in this city, apartments having been selected in the building at the northeast corner of Vermont avenue and H street.

Guiteau's Widow Soon to Marry.

Chicago, Nov. 16.—A license was issued for the marriage of Mrs. Anna Dunmire and Enoch Allen. Mrs. Dunmire was the widow of Charles J. Guiteau, hanged for the assassination of President Garfield in 1882. Allen is her third husband.

Kills the Song.

Clifton Bingham, the author of "In Old Madrid," "Love's Old Sweet Song" and "The Dear Homeland," once said: "The moment a song is put 'on the streets,' as we call it, it becomes tremendously popular. You hear it everywhere. Every boy hums it as he goes to school. It is played in every street. But my publisher shakes his head sadly when that day comes. It is generally the beginning of the end—a boom which dies away. People get tired of hearing the same song wherever they go, whatever the song may be, and the song of the barrel organ is not welcome in the drawing room. So that the putting of a song on the street organs means a fleeting fame, and then—well, too often an utter relapse and complete oblivion."

Morphy's Witty Comment.

Paul Morphy, the famous chess player, once attended church in New Orleans when the bishop of a foreign diocese was present. The young rector of the church had prepared a sermon in honor of his distinguished visitor in the delivery of which he tired every one except the bishop, who paid close attention. Part of the congregation left the church.

"Well," said Morphy, "that preacher is the first man I ever met who hadn't sense enough to stop when he had nothing left but a bishop."

WEALTHY HIS FOE.

Prof. Ross Driven From Stanford University.

ANOTHER TEACHER BIDS DEFIANCE

Says He Is Not Afraid of Standard Oil Company, Etc.—Dr. Jordan Says There Is No Reason to Believe the Rich Influenced Mrs. Stanford.

Stanford University, Cal., Nov. 16.—Dr. Edward Ross, head professor in the department of economics and sociology at Stanford university, has resigned. In his formal letter of resignation he intimated that he was being forced out of the university by Mrs. Stanford, who has taken exceptions to statements made by him in his public address on sociological and economic questions. He further said that Mrs. Stanford was prompted by certain powerful persons and commercial interests in San Francisco. Several of the faculty have taken sides with Dr. Ross.

President Jordan said in part:

"There is not the slightest evidence that he is a 'martyr to freedom of speech.' Nor is there any reason to believe that his withdrawal has been due to any pressure of capital or any other sinister influence. I know that Mrs. Stanford's decision was reached only after long and earnest consideration and that its motive was the welfare of the university and that alone."

Upon being shown Dr. Jordan's statement, Dr. Ross dictated the following:

"Dr. Jordan knows vastly more than I do as to Mrs. Stanford's motives. It is absolutely certain, however, that the freedom of speech is involved, not in my appearance, personality or character, but solely my non-partisan scientific utterances have been the root of Mrs. Stanford's distrust of me."

Supplementing his former utterances upon the subject of Prof. Ross' dismissal, Dr. Howard addressed his class in history upon the matter, and his remarks form the most sensational statement that has yet been delivered in the Ross controversy. The entire hour of the class was given up to the discussion of "free speech." Dr. Howard arraigned the influences that brought about the dismissal of the professor. Prof. Howard concluded his speech with this sensational utterance:

"I do not bow down to Saint Market street. I do not doff my hat to the Six companier; neither am I afraid of the Standard Oil company."

NOBODY COULD SUCCEED MOODY.

Morgan's Tribute—It Is Understood He Will Take Up the Work.

East Northfield, Mass., Nov. 16.—Regarding reports that the Rev. G. Campbell Morgan, of the New Court Congregational church, of London, had been invited to come to this country and take charge of the Moody schools and so far as possible take up on all lines the work of the late Rev. Dwight L. Moody, A. P. Fitt, who married Mr. Moody's daughter, said that erroneous reports had been circulated and that there is to be no change whatever in the management of the schools, Will R. Moody remaining at the head of the Moody work in every particular.

New York, Nov. 16.—A dispatch to The World from London says: The Rev. G. Campbell Morgan was seen at his house on Muswell Hill and was asked if the report was true that he has agreed to be the successor in America of the late Dwight L. Moody. "The report is unfounded," Mr. Morgan answered. "Nobody could succeed him. Mr. William Moody, who is now in London, offered me the Northfield extension work in America, but I can say nothing more definite at present than that I have neither accepted nor refused the offer yet."

It is understood that Mr. Morgan ultimately intends to take Moody's position, but he is disposed to be very reticent.

The Convention of Western Section of Executive Committee Met at Louisville.

Louisville, Ky., Nov. 16.—Distinguished laymen and clergymen of the Presbyterian church met at Warren Memorial church for the annual meeting of the western section of the executive committee of the Pan-Presbyterian alliance. About 35 members were present when Dr. R. P. Kerr, of Richmond, Va., called the meeting to order. The session was taken up by the reading of reports.

At the next session the reports read in the session before were discussed, special attention being given to the missionary report. A reception was given last night at the Warren Memorial church, which was followed by a mass meeting. The addresses and speakers were as follows:

"The Alliance and Its Work," Rev. Principal Caven, D. D., Toronto, president of the alliance; "The Denomination and the Church," Rev. B. P. Fullerton, D. D., St. Louis; "Religion and Education," Chancellor R. B. Fulton, D. D., of Oxford, Miss.; "The Presbyterian Pulpit and National Life," the Rev. J. T. Good, D. D., Reading, Pa.; "The Gospel in France," the Rev. C. M. D'Aubigue, Paris, France; "The Church and the Twentieth Century," the Rev. George F. Pentecost, D. D., Yonkers, N. Y.

MONEY FOR MISSIONS.

M. E. General Missionarp Society Voted Various Sums For Different Fields.

New York, Nov. 16.—At the meeting of the Methodist Episcopal general missionary committee some time was spent in receiving and acting upon the reports of the committees on appropriations for mission fields.

For Southern Asia it was voted to devote these amounts: For North India, $54,000; for Northwest India, $25,000; for Bengal, $12,500; for South India, $20,000; for Bombay, $23,500; for Maylasia, $10,250; for Burmah, $5,277; for the Philippines, $2,000, with the recommendation that $8,000 in addition be asked for out of the thank offering; also $3,000 for North India out of the thank offering.

The report on South America, which was adopted, was for the South America conference, $45,271; for the West South America conference for Chili, $19,202.52; for Lima, $9,713.

It was voted to apply $5,000 of the entire appropriation and the amount of the sale of property in Brazil to the reduction of the debt and to turn over to the board an overdrawn account of $6,000. It was decided to turn over the mission work in Brazil to the Methodist church south.

The committee voted to give Africa $29,868, divided as follows: Liberia, $9,855; East Central Africa, $10,625; West Central, $9,388. It was voted also to add to this amount $25,000, provided that it could be raised.

Previous to the above business, the consideration of the proposed reduction of $25,000 in the money for the foreign missionary field was taken up. It was decided to make this reduction so as to distribute it over the entire appropriation for home and foreign fields, which is about $1,200,000. Of this latter sum the foreign field gets 57 per cent, or about $614,607; the balance, or about $463,658, goes to the home field.

TUAN'S NOBLE RELATIVE.

Rev. Morgan Said Gov. Tuan Saved Missionaries Lives, Although Ordered to Kill All Foreigners.

London, Nov. 16.—The Rev. Evan Morgan, the last foreigner to leave Sian Fu, has arrived here. His life and the lives of the other missionaries in Shen Si province were saved by Governor Tuan, a kinsman of the notorious Prince Tuan. Governor Tuan, when he received a decree from Pekin to kill all foreigners, warned Mr. Morgan and his colleagues and gave them an escort. Mr. Morgan describes the governor as a "brave, friendly and noble man, who, at the risk of his life, saved us—the only foreigners left in Shen Si."

DELIRIUM ON FIRST AWAKENING.

Feature of Davis' Case—Family Prepared For Worst, Although Hopeful.

St. Paul, Minn., Nov. 16.—A feature in the case of United States Senator Davis is the slight delirium on first awakening. The immediate family is prepared for the worst outcome, although hopeful of the possible turn for the better, which seems to appear in any favorable symptoms. Thus far this week has been full of anxiety, and they appreciate to the full the hard struggle for existence now being made. Mrs. Davis scarcely leaves her husband's bedside save for a few hours of necessary sleep, always being within call. Her sisters, Mrs. Tripp and Mrs. Morrell, remain constantly in the house, and in adition to taking the cares of the house from Mrs. Davis and helping the nurses, do all in their power to cheer the aged parents of the senator.

CROKER FOR REFORM.

Tells Tammany to Make War on Vice.

A COMMITTEE IS APPOINTED.

Isidor Straus Invited to Tell Executive Committee of Evils on East Side—Croker Says Assessors of Evil Should Leave the Organization.

New York, Nov. 16.—The executive committee of Tammany hall held a meeting, at which Richard Croker bade all the leaders goodby and took a hand in starting a movement to rid the city of vice. In a little speech the Tammany leader said he was going to Europe for health, not pleasure and introduced Isidor Straus, president of the educational alliance, as a man who was acquainted with the condition of things on the East Side, adding:

"I hope you will give attentive hearing to his statements of the condition of vice that exists there and that after you have heard what he has to say you will use your every effort to correct those evils as far as lies in your power."

Mr. Straus said he had met Mr Croker at dinner accidentally and had talked with him for two hours over the conditions in the East Side and Mr. Croker had asked him to talk to the executive committee of Tammany hall, and then addressing the committee, Mr. Straus told of what was needed on the East Side to suppress crime. He said that he, as a Democrat, had frequently cast up to him the statement that Tammany hall receives the greater parts of its revenue from people in these evil conditions of life and that no good can be accomplished unless the power of Tammany hall is destroyed. Mr. Straus had repeated this to Mr. Croker and the latter asked him to come before the committee with the statement and had promised his aid.

Lewis Nixen then, by resolution, had a committee of five appointed to "investigate the moral conditions of the city and to receive and suggest remedies for the corrections of abuses."

Mr. Nixon was made chairman and the other members are George C. Clausen, president of the park board; Colonel Michael C. Murphy, president of the health board; John J. Scannell, fire commissioner, and John W. Keller, charities commissioner.

Mr. Croker then arose and said:

"I have nothing to add to what has been said to you by Mr. Straus, because he is familiar wiht the matters on which he has spoken to you. I hope that this entire committee will give its full strength towards helping him and his work. We should heartily endorse his remarks and aid him in the work of crushing out this awful crime. And right here I want to reiterate what I said three weeks ago to you, and that is that not one dollar comes into my possession from landlords of pool rooms and houses of ill fame, and if any one of you gentlemen are collecting from any of these people you had better get out of the organization. It has no use for you. You are a disgrace to it. The organization can't and won't stand for any such thing."

The meeting broke up in confusion because of the attitude of Coroner Fitzpatrick, the Tammany leader in the Fourteenth assembly district, who denied that there were any disreputable houses in his district. He said that if there was vice there it was in tenement houses and could not be controlled. To this Mr. Croker excitedly replied that the coroner did not know what could be done until some effort was made.

IN MEMORY OF DALY.

Memorial Services In Nsarly All the Churches In Montana — Funeral In Cathedral, New York.

Helena, Mont., Nov. 16.—Memorial services for Marcus Daly, whose funeral took place in New York were held in nearly all the churches throughout the state, and business of all descriptions was suspended, including the operations of all the mines, smelters and mills of the Amalgamated Copper company. No such scenes of mourning and evidence of respect have ever been witnessed in the west before.

New York, Nov. 16.—The funeral of Marcus Daly, the dead millionaire, took place at noon in St. Patrick's cathedral. Archbishop Corrigan officiated, assisted by Father Lavelle and Bishop Blondell, of Montana. The services were simple and unostentatious, which fulfilled the wishes of the dead man.

Mr. Daly's family and many friends and business associates attended the obsequies. The pallbearers were John B. Haggin, John W. Mackay, Henry H. Rogers, William L. Bull, Hugh J. Grant, John A. Sullivan, president of the Catholic club; Hosmer V. Parsons, vice president of the Wells Fargo company, and William Scallon, Mr. Daly's attorney at Butte.

After the services at the cathedral the body was taken o Greenwood cemetery and placed temporarily in the John W. Mackay mausoleum, pending the decision of the family upon a place of burial.

TO AVOID A LYNCHING.

Sheriff Decided to Keep Louise Frost's Murderer In Denver For Awhile.

Denver, Nov. 16.—Sheriff Freeman, of Lincoln county, decided not to take John Porter, the confessed murderer of little Louise Frost, to that county at present, for fear of a lynching.

Friends of the dead girl's family are deeply incensed and threats of violence against the sheriff are freely made. Thousands of people surrounded the city jail, but there was no indication of any motive other han curiosity. Later Porter was transferred to the custody of Sheriff Jones, of this (Arapahoe) county, and taken to the county jail.

Porter spent some time reading the Bible and praying. He expressed penitence for his crime, but retains remarkable nerve.

BURNED DOWN.

VENOM'S CHICKEN COOP WENT UP IN SMOKE.

Fifteen Very Fine Plymouth Rocks Were Cooked With Their Feathers On.

C. S. Venom, of Carolina avenue, is —or was—the possessor of 15 very fine Plymouth Rock chickens, but they went up in smoke last night at a late hour.

Al McDonald and Charley Bowles were in Liverpool last night and returned home between 11 and 12 o'clock. McDonald had gone to an upstairs room to retire when he saw the blaze in the rear of the Venom house. He called to Bowles to inform the inhabitants of the house, which he did immediately.

It was discovered upon investigation that it was the chicken house that was on fire and within a very short space of time it was consumed, and with it every chicken owned by Venom.

Mr. Venom had placed a lantern in the coop for the purpose of keeping the chickens warm during the night, and in some manner it was overturned, setting fire to the building.

He has consequently earned the ill-will of a great many of the prominent Republicans of the county.

NO CARS.

Not a One Went East for Almost an Hour, Causing Some Inconvenience.

From 7:50 this morning until 8:40 no car passed over the East Liverpool line east. In consequence a great many people who depend upon such accommodations as the company are able to furnish, to go to and from their work, were greatly inconvenienced.

Several teachers employed in the East End schools came near being too late to begin the sessions on time. As usual the atmosphere within the cars was frigid, causing a number of the passengers to suggest that the system be changed to a horse car line, as they would be better able to reach their destination on time.

ONE ON HIS FATHER.

Smart Youth Is Caught, Then Victimizes Parent.

The 12-year-old son of a Van Buren street fond parent recently became the proud possessor of some guinea pigs. A day or two after the same were safely corralled in a cage he went about bragging of his new acquisition among his playmates. Now, it seems these youngsters knew of a "sell" in which guinea pigs play a prominent part. They started to "hook" the youngster and caught him fast and hard.

He felt so bad about it that he started in turn to "sell" some one else. His father was the victim.

"Did you know, papa, that if you hold a guinea pig by the tail its eyes will drop out?"

His father laughed outright.

"Why, who in wonder told you such stuff, Louis?"

"The boys all say that," answered Louis, sober as a judge, "and it's so, yes, sir."

"Oh, nonsense," said his father, still laughing.

"Well, you go to the cage and hold one up and you'll see."

Just to humor the boy the father went out. In a moment he came back looking—well, looking just like a man that's been badly sold.

"The little rascal got me that time," he replied to a friend.

"But I don't see the point," said the friend.

"Don't you?"

"No."

"Well, guinea pigs have no tails."

Sure Enough.

A busy merchant who had not taken a vacation for years, in which time every other member of his family had enjoyed an annual outing, concluded to give himself a rest of a week or two and started for the mountains.

DEAR FRANK—Our house was entirely destroyed by fire last night. The children and I escaped unharmed. Come home at once. MARIA.

DEAR MARIA—What is the use of coming home when there is no home to come to? Take the children to mother's, stay there with them till I join you and don't worry. Affectionately,
FRANK.

WEALTHY HIS FOE.

Prof. Ross Driven From Stanford University.

ANOTHER TEACHER BIDS DEFIANCE

Says He Is Not Afraid of Standard Oil Company, Etc.—Dr. Jordan Says There Is No Reason to Believe the Rich Influenced Mrs. Stanford.

Stanford University, Cal., Nov. 16.—Dr. Edward Ross, head professor in the department of economics and sociology at Stanford university, has resigned. In his formal letter of resignation he intimated that he was being forced out of the university by Mrs. Stanford, who has taken exceptions to statements made by him in his public address on sociological and economic questions. He further said that Mrs. Stanford was prompted by certain powerful persons and commercial interests in San Francisco. Several of the faculty have taken sides with Dr. Ross.

President Jordan said in part:

"There is not the slightest evidence that he is a 'martyr to freedom of speech.' Nor is there any reason to believe that his withdrawal has been due to any pressure of capital or any other sinister influence. I know that Mrs. Stanford's decision was reached only after long and earnest consideration and that its motive was the welfare of the university and that alone."

Upon being shown Dr. Jordan's statement, Dr. Ross dictated the following:

"Dr. Jordan knows vastly more than I do as to Mrs. Stanford's motives. It is absolutely certain, however, that the freedom of speech is involved, not in my appearance, personality or character, but solely my non-partisan scientific utterances have been the root of Mrs. Stanford's distrust of me."

Supplementing his former utterances upon the subject of Prof. Ross' dismissal, Dr. Howard addressed his class in history upon the matter, and his remarks form the most sensational statement that has yet been delivered in the Ross controversy. The entire hour of the class was given up to the discussion of "free speech." Dr. Howard arraigned the influences that brought about the dismissal of the professor. Prof. Howard concluded his speech with this sensational utterance:

"I do not bow down to Saint Market street. I do not doff my hat to the Six companier; neither am I afraid of the Standard Oil company."

NOBODY COULD SUCCEED MOODY.

Morgan's Tribute—It Is Understood He Will Take Up the Work.

East Northfield, Mass., Nov. 16.—Regarding reports that the Rev. G. Campbell Morgan, of the New Court Congregational church, of London, had been invited to come to this country and take charge of the Moody schools and so far as possible take up on all lines the work of the late Rev. Dwight L. Moody, A. P. Fitt, who married Mr. Moody's daughter, said that erroneous reports had been circulated and that there is to be no change whatever in the management of the schools, Will R. Moody remaining at the head of the Moody work in every particular.

New York, Nov. 16.—A dispatch to The World from London says: The Rev. G. Campbell Morgan was seen at his house on Muswell Hill and was asked if the report was true that he has agreed to be the successor in America of the late Dwight L. Moody. "The report is unfounded," Mr. Morgan answered. "Nobody could succeed him. Mr. William Moody, who is now in London, offered me the Northfield extension work in America, but I can say nothing more definite at present than that I have neither accepted nor refused the offer yet."

It is understood that Mr. Morgan ultimately intends to take Moody's position, but he is disposed to be very reticent.

PAN PRESBYTERIAN ALLIANCE.

Louisville, Ky., Nov. 16.—Distinguished laymen and clergymen of the Presbyterian church met at Warren Memorial church for the annual meeting of the western section of the executive committee of the Pan-Presbyterian alliance. About 35 members were present when Dr. R. P. Kerr, of Richmond, Va., called the meeting to order. The session was taken up by the reading of reports.

At the next session the reports read in the session before were discussed, special attention being given to the missionary report. A reception was given last night at the Warren Memorial church, which was followed by a mass meeting. The addresses and speakers were as follows:

"The Alliance and Its Work," Rev. Principal Caven, D. D., Toronto, president of the alliance; "The Denomination and the Church," Rev. B. P. Fullerton, D. D., St. Louis; "Religion and Education," Chancellor R. B. Fulton, D. D., of Oxford, Miss.; "The Presbyterian Pulpit and National Life," the Rev. J. T. Good, D. D., Reading, Pa.; "The Gospel in France," the Rev. C. M. D'Aubigue, Paris, France; "The Church and the Twentieth Century," the Rev. George F. Pentecost, D. D., Yonkers, N. Y.

MONEY FOR MISSIONS.

M. E. General Missionary Society Voted Various Sums For Different Fields.

New York, Nov. 16.—At the meeting of the Methodist Episcopal general missionary committee some time was spent in receiving and acting upon the reports of the committees on appropriations for mission fields.

For Southern Asia it was voted to devote these amounts: For North India, $54,000; for Northwest India, $25,000; for Bengal, $12,500; for South India, $20,000; for Bombay, $23,500; for Maylasia, $10,250; for Burmah, $5,277; for the Philippines, $2,000, with the recommendation that $8,000 in addition be asked for out of the thank offering; also $3,000 for North India out of the thank offering.

The report on South America, which was adopted, was for the South America conference, $45,271; for the West South America conference for Chili, $19,202.52; for Lima, $9,713.

It was voted to apply $5,000 of the entire appropriation and the amount of the sale of property in Brazil to the reduction of the debt and to turn over to the board an overdrawn account of $6,000. It was decided to turn over the mission work in Brazil to the Methodist church south.

The committee voted to give Africa $29,868, divided as follows: Liberia, $9,855; East Central Africa, $10,625; West Central, $9,388. It was voted also to add to this amount $25,000, provided that it could be raised.

Previous to the above business, the consideration of the proposed reduction of $25,000 in the money for the foreign missionary field was taken up. It was decided to make this reduction so as to distribute it over the entire appropriation for home and foreign fields, which is about $1,200,000. Of this latter sum the foreign field gets 57 per cent, or about $614,607; the balance, or about $463,658, goes to the home field.

TUAN'S NOBLE RELATIVE.

Rev. Morgan Said Gov. Tuan Saved Missionaries Lives, Although Ordered to Kill All Foreigners.

London, Nov. 16.—The Rev. Evan Morgan, the last foreigner to leave Sian Fu, has arrived here. His life and the lives of the other missionaries in Shen Si province were saved by Governor Tuan, a kinsman of the notorious Prince Tuan. Governor Tuan, when he received a decree from Pekin to kill all foreigners, warned Mr. Morgan and his colleagues and gave them an escort. Mr. Morgan describes the governor as a "brave, friendly and noble man, who, at the risk of his life, saved us—the only foreigners left in Shen Si."

DELIRIUM ON FIRST AWAKENING.

Feature of Davis' Case—Family Prepared For Worst, Although Hopeful.

St. Paul, Minn., Nov. 16.—A feature in the case of United States Senator Davis is the slight delirium on first awakening. The immediate family is prepared for the worst outcome, although hopeful of the possible turn for the better, which seems to appear in any favorable symptoms. Thus far this week has been full of anxiety, and they appreciate to the full the hard struggle for existence now being made. Mrs. Davis scarcely leaves her husband's bedside save for a few hours of necessary sleep, always being within call. Her sisters, Mrs. Tripp and Mrs. Morrell, remain constantly in the house, and in adition to taking the cares of the house from Mrs. Davis and helping the nurses, do all in their power to cheer the aged parents of the senator.

CROKER FOR REFORM.

Tells Tammany to Make War on Vice.

A COMMITTEE IS APPOINTED.

Isidor Straus Invited to Tell Executive Committee of Evils on East Side—Croker Says Assessors of Evil Should Leave the Organization.

New York, Nov. 16.—The executive committee of Tammany hall held a meeting, at which Richard Croker bade all the leaders goodby and took a hand in starting a movement to rid the city of vice. In a little speech the Tammany leader said he was going to Europe for health, not pleasure and introduced Isidor Straus, president of the educational alliance, as a man who was acquainted with the condition of things on the East Side, adding:

"I hope you will give attentive hearing to his statements of the condition of vice that exists there and that after you have heard what he has to say you will use your every effort to correct those evils as far as lies in your power."

Mr. Straus said he had met Mr Croker at dinner accidentally and had talked with him for two hours over the conditions in the East Side and Mr. Croker had asked him to talk to the executive committee of Tammany hall, and then addressing the committee, Mr. Straus told of what was needed on the East Side to suppress crime. He said that he, as a Democrat, had frequently cast up to him the statement that Tammany hall receives the greater parts of its revenue from people in these evil conditions of life and that no good can be accomplished unless the power of Tammany hall is destroyed. Mr. Straus had repeated this to Mr. Croker and the latter asked him to come before the committee with the statement and had promised his aid.

Lewis Nixen then, by resolution, had a committee of five appointed to "investigate the moral conditions of the city and to receive and suggest remedies for the corrections of abuses."

Mr. Nixon was made chairman and the other members are George C. Clausen, president of the park board; Colonel Michael C. Murphy, president of the health board; John J. Scannell, fire commissioner, and John W. Keller, charities commissioner.

Mr. Croker then arose and said:

"I have nothing to add to what has been said to you by Mr. Straus, because he is familiar wiht the matters on which he has spoken to you. I hope that this entire committee will give its full strength towards helping him and his work. We should heartily endorse his remarks and aid him in the work of crushing out this awful crime. And right here I want to reiterate what I said three weeks ago to you, and that is that not one dollar comes into my possession from landlords of pool rooms and houses of ill fame, and if any one of you gentlemen are collecting from any of these people you had better get out of the organization. It has no use for you. You are a disgrace to it. The organization can't and won't stand for any such thing."

The meeting broke up in confusion because of the attitude of Coroner Fitzpatrick, the Tammany leader in the Fourteenth assembly district, who denied that there were any disreputable houses in his district. He said that if there was vice there it was in tenement houses and could not be controlled. To this Mr. Croker excitedly replied that the coroner did not know what could be done until some effort was made.

The list of killed includes Senor J. F. Canevaro, Peruvian minister to France, and an attache of the Peruvian legation in Madrid.

IN MEMORY OF DALY.

Memorial Services In Nearly All the Churches In Montana—Funeral In Cathedral, New York.

Helena, Mont., Nov. 16.—Memorial services for Marcus Daly, whose funeral took place in New York were held in nearly all the churches throughout the state, and business of all descriptions was suspended, including the operations of all the mines, smelters and mills of the Amalgamated Copper company. No such scenes of mourning and evidence of respect have ever been witnessed in the west before.

New York, Nov. 16.—The funeral of Marcus Daly, the dead millionaire, took place at noon in St. Patrick's cathedral. Archbishop Corrigan officiated, assisted by Father Lavelle and Bishop Blondell, of Montana. The services were simple and unostentatious, which fulfilled the wishes of the dead man.

Mr. Daly's family and many friends and business associates attended the obsequies. The pallbearers were John B. Haggin, John W. Mackay, Henry H. Rogers, William L. Bull, Hugh J. Grant, John A. Sullivan, president of the Catholic club; Hosmer V. Parsons, vice president of the Wells Fargo company, and William Scallon, Mr. Daly's attorney at Butte.

After the services at the cathedral the body was taken o Greenwood cemetery and placed temporarily in the John W. Mackay mausoleum, pending the decision of the family upon a place of burial.

TO AVOID A LYNCHING.

Sheriff Decided to Keep Louise Frost's Murderer In Denver For Awhile.

Denver, Nov. 16.—Sheriff Freeman, of Lincoln county, decided not to take John Porter, the confessed murderer of little Louise Frost, to that county at present, for fear of a lynching.

Friends of the dead girl's family are deeply incensed and threats of violence against the sheriff are freely made. Thousands of people surrounded the city jail, but there was no indication of any motive other than curiosity. Later Porter was transferred to the custody of Sheriff Jones, of this (Arapahoe) county, and taken to the county jail.

Porter spent some time reading the Bible and praying. He expressed penitence for his crime, but retains remarkable nerve.

Miss Morgan Married.

New York, Nov. 16.—Miss Louise Pierpont Morgan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. Pierpont Morgan, was married in St. George's church, Stuyvesant street, to Robert Livingstone Satterlee, a lawyer of this city. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Dr. Rainsford, rector of St. George's. A reception followed at the house. The gifts were handsome.

WEALTHY HIS FOE.

Prof. Ross Driven From Stanford University.

ANOTHER TEACHER BIDS DEFIANCE

Says He Is Not Afraid of Standard Oil Company, Etc.—Dr. Jordan Says There Is No Reason to Believe the Richln fluenced Mrs. Stanford.

Stanford University, Cal., Nov. 16.—Dr. Edward Ross, head professor in the department of economics and sociology at Stanford university, has resigned. In his formal letter of resignation he intimated that he was being forced out of the university by Mrs. Stanford, who has taken exceptions to statements made by him in his public address on sociological and economic questions. He further said that Mrs. Stanford was prompted by certain powerful persons and commercial interests in San Francisco. Several of the faculty have taken sides with Dr. Ross.

President Jordan said in part:

"There is not the slightest evidence that he is a 'martyr to freedom of speech.' Nor is there any reason to believe that his withdrawal has been due to any pressure of capital or any other sinister influence. I know that Mrs. Stanford's decision was reached only after long and earnest consideration and that its motive was the welfare of the university and that alone."

Upon being shown Dr. Jordan's statement, Dr. Ross dictated the following:

"Dr. Jordan knows vastly more than I do as to Mrs. Stanford's motives. It is absolutely certain, however, that the freedom of speech is involved, not in my appearance, personality or character, but solely my non-partisan scientific utterances have been the root of Mrs. Stanford's distrust of me."

Supplementing his former utterances upon the subject of Prof. Ross' dismissal, Dr. Howard addressed his class in history upon the matter, and his remarks form the most sensational statement that has yet been delivered in the Ross controversy. The entire hour of the class was given up to the discussion of "free speech." Dr. Howard arraigned the influences that brought about the dismissal of the professor. Prof. Howard concluded his speech with this sensational utterance:

"I do not bow down to Saint Market street. I do not doff my hat to the Six companier; neither am I afraid of the Standard Oil company."

NOBODY COULD SUCCEED MOODY.

Morgan's Tribute—It Is Understood He Will Take Up the Work.

East Northfield, Mass., Nov. 16.—Regarding reports that the Rev. G. Campbell Morgan, of the New Court Congregational church, of London, had been invited to come to this country and take charge of the Moody schools and so far as possible take up on all lines the work of the late Rev. Dwight L. Moody, A. P. Fitt, who married Mr. Moody's daughter, said that erroneous reports had been circulated and that there is to be no change whatever in the management of the schools, Will R. Moody remaining at the head of the Moody work in every particular.

New York, Nov. 16.—A dispatch to The World from London says: The Rev. G. Campbell Morgan was seen at his house on Muswell Hill and was asked if the report was true that he has agreed to be the successor in America of the late Dwight L. Moody. "The report is unfounded," Mr. Morgan answered. "Nobody could succeed him. Mr. William Moody, who is now in London, offered me the Northfield extension work in America, but I can say nothing more definite at present than that I have neither accepted nor refused the offer yet."

It is understood that Mr. Morgan ultimately intends to take Moody's position, but he is disposed to be very reticent.

PAN PRESBYTERIAN ALLIANCE.

Louisville, Ky., Nov. 16.—Distinguished laymen and clergymen of the Presbyterian church met at Warren Memorial church for the annual meeting of the western section of the executive committee of the Pan-Presbyterian alliance. About 35 members were present when Dr. R. P. Kerr, of Richmond, Va., called the meeting to order. The session was taken up by the reading of reports.

At the next session the reports read in the session before were discussed, special attention being given to the missionary report. A reception was given last night at the Warren Memorial church, which was followed by a mass meeting. The addresses and speakers were as follows:

"The Alliance and Its Work," Rev. Principal Caven, D. D., Toronto, president of the alliance; "The Denomination and the Church," Rev. B. P. Fullerton, D. D., St. Louis; "Religion and Education," Chancellor R. B. Fulton, D. D., of Oxford, Miss.; "The Presbyterian Pulpit and National Life," the Rev. J. T. Good, D. D., Reading, Pa.; "The Gospel in France," the Rev. C. M. D'Aubigue, Paris, France; "The Church and the Twentieth Century," the Rev. George F. Pentecost, D. D., Yonkers, N. Y.

MONEY FOR MISSIONS.

M. E. General Missionarp Society Voted Various Sums For Different Fields.

New York, Nov. 16.—At the meeting of the Methodist Episcopal general missionary committee some time was spent in receiving and acting upon the reports of the committees on appropriations for mission fields.

For Southern Asia it was voted to devote these amounts: For North India, $54,000; for Northwest India, $25,000; for Bengal, $12,500; for South India, $20,000; for Bombay, $23,500; for Maylasia, $10,250; for Burmah, $5,277; for the Philippines, $2,000, with the recommendation that $8,000 in addition be asked for out of the thank offering; also $3,000 for North India out of the thank offering.

The report on South America, which was adopted, was for the South America conference, $45,271; for the West South America conference for Chili, $19,202.52; for Lima, $9,713.

It was voted to apply $5,000 of the entire appropriation and the amount of the sale of property in Brazil to the reduction of the debt and to turn over to the board an overdrawn account of $6,000. It was decided to turn over the mission work in Brazil to the Methodist church south.

The committee voted to give Africa $29,868, divided as follows: Liberia, $9,855; East Central Africa, $10,625; West Central, $9,388. It was voted also to add to this amount $25,000, provided that it could be raised.

Previous to the above business, the consideration of the proposed reduction of $25,000 in the money for the foreign missionary field was taken up. It was decided to make this reduction so as to distribute it over the entire appropriation for home and foreign fields, which is about $1,200,000. Of this latter sum the foreign field gets 57 per cent, or about $614,607; the balance, or about $463,658, goes to the home field.

TUAN'S NOBLE RELATIVE.

Rev. Morgan Said Gov. Tuan Saved Missionaries Lives, Although Ordered to Kill All Foreigners.

London, Nov. 16.—The Rev. Evan Morgan, the last foreigner to leave Sian Fu, has arrived here. His life and the lives of the other missionaries in Shen Si province were saved by Governor Tuan, a kinsman of the notorious Prince Tuan. Governor Tuan, when he received a decree from Pekin to kill all foreigners, warned Mr. Morgan and his colleagues and gave them an escort. Mr. Morgan describes the governor as a "brave, friendly and noble man, who, at the risk of his life, saved us—the only foreigners left in Shen Si."

DELIRIUM ON FIRST AWAKENING.

Feature of Davis' Case—Family Prepared For Worst, Although Hopeful.

St. Paul, Minn., Nov. 16.—A feature in the case of United States Senator Davis is the slight delirium on first awakening. The immediate family is prepared for the worst outcome, although hopeful of the possible turn for the better, which seems to appear in any favorable symptoms. Thus far this week has been full of anxiety, and they appreciate to the full the hard struggle for existence now being made. Mrs. Davis scarcely leaves her husband's bedside save for a few hours of necessary sleep, always being within call. Her sisters, Mrs. Tripp and Mrs. Morrell, remain constantly in the house, and in adition to taking the cares of the house from Mrs. Davis and helping the nurses, do all in their power to cheer the aged parents of the senator.

CROKER FOR REFORM.

Tells Tammany to Make War on Vice.

A COMMITTEE IS APPOINTED.

Isidor Straus Invited to Tell Executive Committee of Evils on East Side—Croker Says Assessors of Evil Should Leave the Organization.

New York, Nov. 16.—The executive committee of Tammany hall held a meeting, at which Richard Croker bade all the leaders goodby and took a hand in starting a movement to rid the city of vice. In a little speech the Tammany leader said he was going to Europe for health, not pleasure and introduced Isidor Straus, president of the educational alliance, as a man who was acquainted with the condition of things on the East Side, adding:

"I hope you will give attentive hearing to his statements of the condition of vice that exists there and that after you have heard what he has to say you will use your every effort to correct those evils as far as lies in your power."

Mr. Straus said he had met Mr Croker at dinner accidentally and had talked with him for two hours over the conditions in the East Side and Mr. Croker had asked him to talk to the executive committee of Tammany hall, and then addressing the committee, Mr. Straus told of what was needed on the East Side to suppress crime. He said that he, as a Democrat, had frequently cast up to him the statement that Tammany hall receives the greater parts of its revenue from people in these evil conditions of life and that no good can be accomplished unless the power of Tammany hall is destroyed. Mr. Straus had repeated this to Mr. Croker and the latter asked him to come before the committee with the statement and had promised his aid.

Lewis Nixen then, by resolution, had a committee of five appointed to "investigate the moral conditions of the city and to receive and suggest remedies for the corrections of abuses."

Mr. Nixon was made chairman and the other members are George C. Clausen, president of the park board; Colonel Michael C. Murphy, president of the health board; John J. Scannell, fire commissioner, and John W. Keller, charities commissioner.

Mr. Croker then arose and said:

"I have nothing to add to what has been said to you by Mr. Straus, because he is familiar wiht the matters on which he has spoken to you. I hope that this entire committee will give its full strength towards helping him and his work. We should heartily endorse his remarks and aid him in the work of crushing out this awful crime. And right here I want to reiterate what I said three weeks ago to you, and that is that not one dollar comes into my possession from landlords of pool rooms and houses of ill fame, and if any one of you gentlemen are collecting from any of these people you had better get out of the organization. It has no use for you. You are a disgrace to it. The organization can't and won't stand for any such thing."

The meeting broke up in confusion because of the attitude of Coroner Fitzpatrick, the Tammany leader in the Fourteenth assembly disrict, who denied that there were any disreputable houses in his district. He said that if there was vice there it was in tenement houses and could not be controlled. To this Mr. Croker excitedly replied that the coroner did not know what could be done until some effort was made.

IN MEMORY OF DALY.

Memorial Services In Nearly All the Churches In Montana—Funeral In Cathedral, New York.

Helena, Mont., Nov. 16.—Memorial services for Marcus Daly, whose funeral took place in New York were held in nearly all the churches throughout the state, and business of all descriptions was suspended, including the operations of all the mines, smelters and mills of the Amalgamated Copper company. No such scenes of mourning and evidence of respect have ever been witnessed in the west before.

New York, Nov. 16.—The funeral of Marcus Daly, the dead millionaire, took place at noon in St. Patrick's cathedral. Archbishop Corrigan officiated, assisted by Father Lavelle and Bishop Blondell, of Montana. The services were simple and unostentatious, which fulfilled the wishes of the dead man.

Mr. Daly's family and many friends and business associates attended the obsequies. The pallbearers were John B. Haggin, John W. Mackay, Henry H. Rogers, William L. Bull, Hugh J. Grant, John A. Sullivan, president of the Catholic club; Hosmer V. Parsons, vice president of the Wells Fargo company, and William Scallon, Mr. Daly's attorney at Butte.

After the services at the cathedral the body was taken o Greenwood cemetery and placed temporarily in the John W. Mackay mausoleum, pending the decision of the family upon a place of burial.

TO AVOID A LYNCHING.

Sheriff Decided to Keep Louise Frost's Murderer In Denver For Awhile.

Denver, Nov. 16.—Sheriff Freeman, of Lincoln county, decided not to take John Porter, the confessed murderer of little Louise Frost, to that county at present, for fear of a lynching.

Friends of the dead girl's family are deeply incensed and threats of violence against the sheriff are freely made. Thousands of people surrounded the city jail, but there was no indication of any motive other han curiosity. Later Porter was transferred to the custody of Sheriff Jones, of this (Arapahoe) county, and taken to the county jail.

Porter spent some time reading the Bible and praying. He expressed penitence for his crime, but retains remarkable nerve.

Dr. Rainsford, rector of St. George's. A reception followed at the house. The gifts were handsome.

The Enormous Success of our last sale has shown us that the people of East Liverpool appreciate our efforts to give them Seasonable Goods at Less than they can buy the same for elsewhere, hence this Great Sale, at which we shall make still greater reductions. We wish to impress upon our patrons that we are NEVER UNDERSOLD, and that, quality considered, they can trade cheaper here than at any place in town, that's what makes us the "LEADER".

MYLER GOT IT.

The Dog Case Had an Airing in the Court of Squire McLane Last Night.

The case of John Myler versus Harrison Lucas to obtain possession of a dog was set for trial at 1 o'clock yesterday afternoon in the court of Justice McLane, but owing to the absence of the main witness, who resides at Teagarten, and who had not arrived when the case was called, it was continued for one week.

Scarcely had the parties to the case gotten out of the office until the Teagarten man appeared. An attempt was then made to get the people together again, but it was late in the evening before Constable Miller succeeded in rounding them up.

At 8 o'clock the case was opened and it took but a short time to straighten matters out. Dickinson, the Teagarten man, testified that the dog was the same he had traded to Myler, and the court ruled that way.

TWO ACCIDENTS

Befell Clyde Huss While He Was at Work This Morning.

Clyde Huss, salesman at Joseph Bros., met with a slight accident this morning, which resulted in another and more serious one.

He was working about the front end of the store when he accidentally struck his elbow. He became very ill and after staggering a few steps fainted, falling with considerable force upon the edge of the table, striking his head.

A nasty gash was cut in his forehead. Dr. Clark was called upon to dress the wound, and it was found necessary to take several stitches in the cut before it could be closed.

NEUROPATHY.

Teddy, the infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Collins, Wheeling, where the father is engaged at La Belle, is a living example of the power of neuropathy. Infantile paralysis had destroyed the use of the right leg, and the little one was unable to walk. Twelve treatments have been given the bright youngster, one taking place this morning, and the boy trotted gleefully across the room to his grandfather, Stewart Collins, the only artificial help made use of being a small brace, inside the shoe, to strengthen the ankle. This cure is simply a marvelous one.

Judgment by Default.

Justice McLane this morning rendered judgment by default in the case of Annie Green against "Woody" Webber, for the possession of a photographing outfit.

In the same court the case of J. K. Jones against John Blackmore for $35, claimed due for wages, was settled by plaintiff agreeing to compromise for $30, rather than to let the case take its legal course, which would necessitate his remaining in the city for 150 days.

THE GALLUP FAMILY

AN EVENING OF ONE SIDED TEARS AND LAMENTATIONS.

Mrs. Gallup Gives Her Silent Husband Some Instructions and Advice About Her Own Funeral and the Wife That Will Succeed Her.

[Copyright, 1900, by C. B. Lewis.]

Mr. Gallup had gone down town after supper to hear the political news, and it was 9 o'clock when he got back home. He had left Mrs. Gallup clearing away the dishes and singing "Happy Day," but when he returned she was lying on the lounge with her eyes closed and the house quiet as a graveyard. He sat down after a glance at the figure and laboriously untied his shoes and pried them off and then picked up the family almanac to see what time the moon would be in her last quarter. Ten minutes passed, and Mrs. Gallup uttered a long drawn sigh. Two minutes later she groaned. A minute after the groan, as Mr. Gallup had paid no attention to her, she sat up and said:

"Samuel, you've come here jest in time. I was afraid I'd hev to go without biddin you goodby, but you are here. You hadn't been gone from the house ten minits when I went to carry the milk down cellar. I wasn't thinkin of death or anything of that sort when all to once I heard a voice sayin, 'Git ready to soar away and become an angel.' You may tell me, Samuel, that it was the vinegar bar'l workin or that it was a-gurglin from the soft soap, but I know better. It was my summons to go, and I come right up stairs and begun to git ready. It won't disturb you much if I die tonight, will it?"

Mr. Gallup didn't reply. He had found the moon's last quarter and was deeply interested.

"I've never bin no hand to make you trouble, Samuel," she continued, "and I shan't begin now. If you'd rather I'd die in the daytime, I'll try and hold on, though I s'pose one ought to die when the hour comes. Mebbe you've bin thinkin that when I died you'd hev to pay out a great lot of money over the funeral, but I want you to know different. I've never bin an extravagant woman, and I kin git along with a cheap funeral. I was reckonin it up t'other day, and I was surprised and pleased with the figgers. Do you know, Samuel Gallup, that the hull thing, from fust to last, won't cost a cent over $30?"

One of Mr. Gallup's eyebrows was slightly raised in a questioning manner, but he made no verbal reply.

"Only $30, Samuel, and that includes one of the best lots in the graveyard. If you wanted to bury me out in the back yard, the cost would be reduced to $25, and I don't think any husband on earth kin complain of that. There are wives who'd kick ag'in bein buried in the back yard, but I shan't say a word. And I've arranged other things fur you, Samuel. While you've bin busy with politics and lawsuits I've bin arrangin fur death. In about an hour from now, when I breathe my last, you'll go over and rap three times on Mrs. Watkins' door. Three raps mean that I hev soared away, and she'll be over in ten minits to take charge. Then you kin go right to bed and go to sleep, same as usual. The funeral will take place the day after. Mrs. Green will lend you 14 chairs, and Mrs. Taylor will pick out the hymns to be sung. Mrs. Jordan will milk our cow and strain the milk, and Mrs. Johnson will come over and git your meals. Are you listenin to me, Samuel?"

If he was, there were no signs of it. He had got through with the moon and passed on to the medical testimonials, and he seemed to be reading with bated breath.

"All you'll hev to do," she continued after a sob or two, "is to move about kinder sorrerfullike and shed a few tears. I've had 32 fits of sickness since we was married, and sometimes you've had to hire the washin done fur me; but, after all, you'll be kinder sorry when I'm gone. You'll remember how I made one teakettle last 14 years and how I allus made the tea and sugar last longer than any other woman in town. I shan't ask you to break down and weep, Samuel, but if I was you I'd shed tears. I not only deserve 'em, but all the folks will be watchin you to see if you are affected. You've got six handkerchiefs almost as good as new, and you won't run short even if you shed tears from both eyes. Don't you think I'm right, Samuel?"

She wiped her tears and held back her sobs and waited for a reply, but none came. Mr. Gallup was reading how the life of a man who had fallen on a pitchfork had been saved by Persian stomach bitters, and his ears were closed.

"As to buryin me in the back yard, of course you kin do as you think best. In one way it will save you $5, and in another it'll take up ground fur cabbages. You'll marry ag'in, of course, and your second wife will want a hammock out under the trees. Mebbe she'll object to my grave. If I was your second wife, I wouldn't object to your first wife's grave, but I'm different from most women. You'd better think the thing over purty seriously. And there's another thing, Samuel. A long time ago I told you that if you ever got married ag'in I'd haunt you. I was mad and said more'n I ought to. Of course I could come back as a ghost and roost on the footboard of the bed and keep you awake nights, and I could hide down cellar and skeer you most to death when you come down after cider, but I'm not that kind of woman. Right here and now I want to tell you that I'll never haunt you nor your second wife. Don't you think I'm purty good, Samuel?"

Mr. Gallup had finished the pitchfork testimonial and struck one where a man had been blown up with a stump, and he was so interested that he didn't hear her question. She wept for three or four minutes and then said:

"No, don't go to any unnecessary expense to lay away my mortal remains, Samuel. As my speerit will be flyin around in heaven, it won't make no great difference about my body. When Mrs. Thompson died, she wanted a funeral to cost $250, but I'm not Mrs. Thompson. You'll marry again, of course, and you'll need all your money to flam out with. Second wives allus flam. Yours will want a new dishpan, new curtains, new knives and forks and as many as three new tablecloths the very fust thing. Speakin of tablecloths, Samuel, I've made the last new one last seven years. I don't expect any praise fur it, but when your second wife shakes one all to pieces in six months you'll see a difference. What kind of a second wife are you goin to marry, Samuel? You needn't be afraid to tell me, fur there isn't a jealous hair in my head. Will she be old or young?"

Mr. Gallup yawned and stretched and thrust out his legs, but he had nothing to say.

"Mrs. Roedecker says you'll probably marry a young chit of 17, and Mrs. Jackson says you'll probably look fur a widder with as many as five cows, but I ain't goin to find no fault in either case. On the contrary, I kinder pity you. Second wives allus smash and break and bust things, and if you say anything they'll sass back and pull hair. You'll be rid of me and my trubbles, Samuel, but there'll be times when you'll sit down on the wash bench outdoors and wish I was back. Yes, you'll acknowledge to yourself that I was hardworkin and savin and that I was no hand to gad about, but I'll be an angel, and you'll hev to plug along the best you kin without me. That's all, Samuel, and I will now die and bev it over with."

She stretched out on the lounge and folded her hands and closed her eyes, and for ten minutes there was silence. Then Mr. Gallup yawned again, looked around and saw her there, and as he rose up to wind the clock and go to bed he observed:

"You'd better turn the cat outdoors and see if the kitchen window is fastened up." M. QUAD.

Lieutenant Jones' Nerve.

"The nerviest act I know of," said a Kansas man while discussing the world's brave deeds, "was performed by Lieutenant Jones of the company of marines that took John Brown at Harper's Ferry. Robert E. Lee had advanced his 90 marines in a semicircle about the armory in which Brown and his men had taken refuge. Then Lieutenant Jones stepped out and commenced to read the riot act to the men behind the armory walls, and, though they kept shooting at him, his voice never wavered, nor did he show any other sign of trepidation. I was in that company of marines."—Kansas City Journal.

VENOM'S CHICKEN COOP WENT UP IN SMOKE.

Fifteen Very Fine Plymouth Rocks Were Cooked With Their Feathers On.

C. S. Venom, of Carolina avenue, is —or was—the possessor of 15 very fine Plymouth Rock chickens, but they went up in smoke last night at a late hour.

Al McDonald and Charley Bowles were in Liverpool last night and returned home between 11 and 12 o'clock. McDonald had gone to an upstairs room to retire when he saw the blaze in the rear of the Venom house. He called to Bowles to inform the inhabitants of the house, which he did immediately.

It was discovered upon investigation that it was the chicken house that was on fire and within a very short space of time it was consumed, and with it every chicken owned by Venom.

Mr. Venom had placed a lantern in the coop for the purpose of keeping the chickens warm during the night, and in some manner it was overturned, setting fire to the building.

Several teachers employed in the East End schools came near being too late to begin the sessions on time. As usual the atmosphere within the cars was frigid, causing a number of the passengers to suggest that the system be changed to a horse car line, as they would be better able to reach their destination on time.

ONE ON HIS FATHER.

Smart Youth Is Caught, Then Victimizes Parent.

The 12-year-old son of a Van Buren street fond parent recently became the proud possessor of some guinea pigs. A day or two after the same were safely corralled in a cage he went about bragging of his new acquisition among his playmates. Now, it seems these youngsters knew of a "sell" in which guinea pigs play a prominent part. They started to "hook" the youngster and caught him fast and hard.

He felt so bad about it that he started in turn to "sell" some one else. His father was the victim.

"Did you know, papa, that if you hold a guinea pig by the tail its eyes will drop out?"

His father laughed outright.

"Why, who in wonder told you such stuff, Louis?"

"The boys all say that," answered Louis, sober as a judge, "and it's so, yes, sir."

"Oh, nonsense," said his father, still laughing.

Just to humor the boy the father went out. In a moment he came back looking—well, looking just like a man that's been badly sold.

"The little rascal got me that time," he replied to a friend.

"But I don't see the point," said the friend.

"Don't you?"

"No."

"Well, guinea pigs have no tails."

Sure Enough.

A busy merchant who had not taken a vacation for years, in which time every other member of his family had enjoyed an annual outing, concluded to give himself a rest of a week or two and started for the mountains.

DEAR FRANK—Our house was entirely destroyed by fire last night. The children and I escaped unharmed. Come home at once. MARIA.

DEAR MARIA—What is the use of coming home when there is no home to come to? Take the children to mother's, stay there with them till I join you and don't worry. Affectionately,
FRANK.

EAST END.

NO CARS.

From 7:50 this morning until 8:40 no car passed over the East Liverpool line east. In consequence a great many people who depend upon such accommodations as the company are able to furnish, to go to and from their work, were greatly inconvenienced.

Several teachers employed in the East End schools came near being too late to begin the sessions on time. As usual the atmosphere within the cars was frigid, causing a number of the passengers to suggest that the system be changed to a horse car line, as they would be better able to reach their destination on time.

ONE ON HIS FATHER.

Smart Youth Is Caught, Then Victimizes Parent.

The 12-year-old son of a Van Buren street fond parent recently became the proud possessor of some guinea pigs. A day or two after the same were safely corralled in a cage he went about bragging of his new acquisition among his playmates. Now, it seems these youngsters knew of a "sell" in which guinea pigs play a prominent part. They started to "hook" the youngster and caught him fast and hard.

He felt so bad about it that he started in turn to "sell" some one else. His father was the victim.

"Did you know, papa, that if you hold a guinea pig by the tail its eyes will drop out?"

His father laughed outright.

"Why, who in wonder told you such stuff, Louis?"

"The boys all say that," answered Louis, sober as a judge, "and it's so, yes, sir."

"Oh, nonsense," said his father, still laughing.

Just to humor the boy the father went out. In a moment he came back looking—well, looking just like a man that's been badly sold.

"The little rascal got me that time," he replied to a friend.

"But I don't see the point," said the friend.

"Don't you?"

"No."

"Well, guinea pigs have no tails."

Sure Enough.

A busy merchant who had not taken a vacation for years, in which time every other member of his family had enjoyed an annual outing, concluded to give himself a rest of a week or two and started for the mountains.

DEAR FRANK—Our house was entirely destroyed by fire last night. The children and I escaped unharmed. Come home at once. MARIA.

DEAR MARIA—What is the use of coming home when there is no home to come to? Take the children to mother's, stay there with them till I join you and don't worry. Affectionately,
FRANK.

COTTON BALE TRUST.

SENATOR JONES DODGES BEHIND THE PATENT LAW,

And Declares It Is Not a Trust—But It Has a Monopoly of the Best Baling Process, and Compels Cotton Planters to Pay Its Own Price.

At length after many months prodding, Chairman Jones of the Democratic national committee has said a word about his round cotton bale concern. He declares that the American Cotton company is not a trust, and that "any statement made by anybody that I am in any way connected with or interested in any organization that is in any sense a trust is absolutely untrue." These are Mr. Jones' words, but his corporation has carefully kept away from the courts of Texas, where they are trying to find out whether it is a trust or not. The Democratic chairman from Arkansas shouldn't be afraid of the courts of the Democratic banner state.

Another point: If the Jones concern is not a trust, then not one corporation out of a thousand talked about by Bryan deserves his denunciation. At Akron, Bryan referred directly to local establishments in that city, as if they were trust, without the least warrant of fact, and far less color for the statement, than there is in the cotton bale concern of his chairman, Jones. Not one of them has the benefit of a patent protection, which is the most absolute form of private monopoly possible in America, having the protection of all our legislation and of our courts, and without protest from any political party until Bryan's recent attacks, that included patent rights as things to be destroyed and swept away.

Jones himself has publicly pleaded that their cotton compressing concern has patent rights upon its round bale and the machinery for it, but withheld the further truth that this gave them an absolute monopoly upon this important devise in the handling of cotton, and thus compelled the entire cotton trade to pay tribute to Jones and his partner, Searles of the sugar trust. This is the same Searles, by the way, who got the benefit of the boost for the sugar trust of many million dollars given it in the Wilson tariff bill, that Bryan helped to put upon the statute books.

HIGHEST EVER KNOWN

Is the Wage-Rate In Manufacturing and Mining In This Country Today.

Greater than ever before in the history of the United States is the relative rate of wages in manufacturing and mining in 1900, says an official report just prepared by Carroll D. Wright, national commissioner of labor. The pay is much higher than in 1899, which was the highest year since 1892—1891 being the basis of comparison. In '93, during the Democratic panic, wages began to drop, and decreased steadily for the next four year of Democratic rule, and in '97, upon McKinley's election, began to advance again. More important still is that there are more people at work at these better wages. Michigan alone reports 1,005 factories, not in existence in 1897, that now employ 23,000 people, with $1,500,000 yearly wages. Of the factories in operation the same general truth holds good. The best proof of it all is in the increased savings of the workingmen that is shown by their deposits, for physical needs have to be satisfied before there is a surplus for the savings banks. Yet in the last business year workingmen in Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Michigan, Wisconsin and Minnesota laid away $68,000,000 in the savings banks.

Her Choice.

Once upon a time a Young Person, by Dint of Frugality, had accumulated a Wad, and, the season of Millinery Openings having come, it was now Up to her.

"Shall I," she mused in no small anxiety, "make my Wad look like 30 cents, or shall I trim my own hat and thus make myself look like 30 cents?"

As the Shrewd Reader will doubtless have conjectured, the Upshot of the matter was that the Young Person purchased a Lovely Imported Creation. Costing $50.—Detroit Journal.

AN INSPIRATION.

It Showed the Bashful Youth a Happy Way to Pop the Question.

"It's a go," announced the young man with beaming face, "and the happy day has been set!"

"So you got your courage up to the point at last?" said the friend who understood the situation.

"Yes. Say, it isn't hard when you get started. But it is a wonder I didn't get nervous prostration before I made the plunge! I was six months trying to get courage enough to ask the all important question. But every time that I opened my mouth to speak I simply broke out into a cold sweat and couldn't say a word for the life of me. I would have retreated a dozen times bag and baggage if I could have done so gracefully. Not that I didn't want the girl, but simply for the reason that I despaired of ever being able to ask her to be mine. The girl acted, too, as if she had a right to hear something to the point. But I could only sit there like a chuckle headed idiot and abuse the weather. I would have been right there in the same horrible situation if something hadn't happened to break the ice.

"One night last week we were sitting side by side on a sofa and during one of those blissful moments when nothing was being said I chanced to notice the girl's eyes intently fixed upon a motto that hung on the wall opposite and which read, 'Love One Another.' I'll be hanged if I ever saw that motto before, but it gave me an inspiration, and I leaned over and murmured, 'Shall we?' and she murmured, 'I don't mind,' and it was all over but the shouting!"—Detroit Free Press.

It Told the Truth.

They continued along the street until, coming opposite a plumber's shop with a big bill in the window with the words "Cast Iron Sinks" printed in large letters on it, he exclaimed: "Well, Jock, here's yin, that tells the truth at ony rate. But any danged fool kens that cast iron wad sink."

MYLER GOT IT.

The Dog Case Had an Airing in the Court of Squire McLane Last Night.

The case of John Myler versus Harrison Lucas to obtain possession of a dog was set for trial at 1 o'clock yesterday afternoon in the court of Justice McLane, but owing to the absence of the main witness, who resides at Teagarten, and who had not arrived when the case was called, it was continued for one week.

Scarcely had the parties to the case gotten out of the office until the Teagarten man appeared. An attempt was then made to get the people together again, but it was late in the evening before Constable Miller succeeded in rounding them up.

At 8 o'clock the case was opened and it took but a short time to straighten matters out. Dickinson, the Teagarten man, testified that the dog was the same he had traded to Myler, and the court ruled that way.

THE GALLUP FAMILY

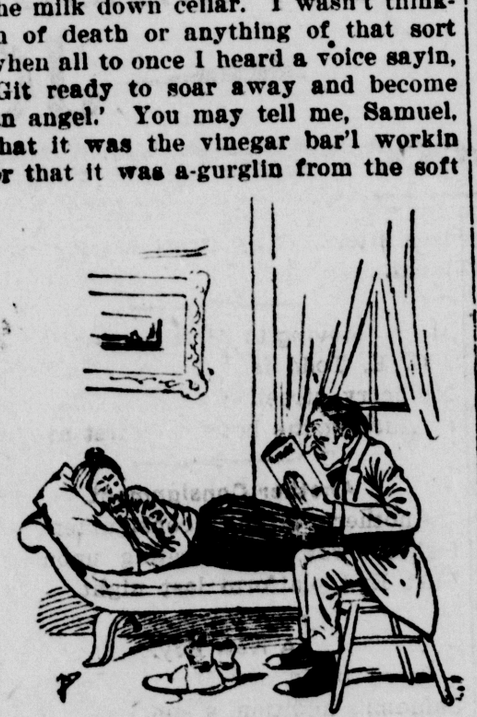

AN EVENING OF ONE SIDED TEARS AND LAMENTATIONS.

Mrs. Gallup Gives Her Silent Husband Some Instructions and Advice About Her Own Funeral and the Wife That Will Succeed Her.

[Copyright, 1900, by C. B. Lewis.]

Mr. Gallup had gone down town after supper to hear the political news, and it was 9 o'clock when he got back home. He had left Mrs. Gallup clearing away the dishes and singing "Happy Day," but when he returned she was lying on the lounge with her eyes closed and the house quiet as a graveyard. He sat down after a glance at the figure and laboriously untied his shoes and pried them off and then picked up the family almanac to see what time the moon would be in her last quarter. Ten minutes passed, and Mrs. Gallup uttered a long drawn sigh. Two minutes later she groaned. A minute after the groan, as Mr. Gallup had paid no attention to her, she sat up and said:

"Samuel, you've come here jest in time. I was afraid I'd hev to go without biddin you goodby, but you are here. You hadn't been gone from the house ten minits when I went to carry the milk down cellar. I wasn't thinkin of death or anything of that sort when all to once I heard a voice sayin, 'Git ready to soar away and become an angel.' You may tell me, Samuel, that it was the vinegar bar'l workin or that it was a-gurglin from the soft soap, but I know better. It was my summons to go, and I come right up stairs and begun to git ready. It won't disturb you much if I die tonight, will it?"

Mr. Gallup didn't reply. He had found the moon's last quarter and was deeply interested.

"I've never bin no hand to make you trouble, Samuel," she continued, "and I shan't begin now. If you'd rather I'd die in the daytime, I'll try and hold on, though I s'pose one ought to die when the hour comes. Mebbe you've bin thinkin that when I died you'd hev to pay out a great lot of money over the funeral, but I want you to know different. I've never bin an extravagant woman, and I kin git along with a cheap funeral. I was reckonin it up t'other day, and I was surprised and pleased with the figgers. Do you know, Samuel Gallup, that the hull thing, from fust to last, won't cost a cent over $30?"

One of Mr. Gallup's eyebrows was slightly raised in a questioning manner, but he made no verbal reply.

"Only $30, Samuel, and that includes one of the best lots in the graveyard. If you wanted to bury me out in the back yard, the cost would be reduced to $25, and I don't think any husband on earth kin complain of that. There are wives who'd kick ag'in bein buried in the back yard, but I shan't say a word. And I've arranged other things fur you, Samuel. While you've bin busy with politics and lawsuits I've bin arrangin fur death. In about an hour from now, when I breathe my last, you'll go over and rap three times on Mrs. Watkins' door. Three raps mean that I hev soared away, and she'll be over in ten minits to take charge. Then you kin go right to bed and go to sleep, same as usual. The funeral will take place the day after. Mrs. Green will lend you 14 chairs, and Mrs. Taylor will pick out the hymns to be sung. Mrs. Jordan will milk our cow and strain the milk, and Mrs. Johnson will come over and git your meals. Are you listenin to me, Samuel?"

If he was, there were no signs of it. He had got through with the moon and passed on to the medical testimonials, and he seemed to be reading with bated breath.

"All you'll hev to do," she continued after a sob or two, "is to move about kinder sorrerfullike and shed a few tears. I've had 32 fits of sickness since we was married, and sometimes you've had to hire the washin done fur me; but, after all, you'll be kinder sorry when I'm gone. You'll remember how I made one teakettle last 14 years and how I allus made the tea and sugar last longer than any other woman in town. I shan't ask you to break down and weep, Samuel, but if I was you I'd shed tears. I not only deserve 'em, but all the folks will be watchin you to see if you are affected. You've got six handkerchiefs almost as good as new, and you won't run short even if you shed tears from both eyes. Don't you think I'm right, Samuel?"

She wiped her tears and held back her sobs and waited for a reply, but none came. Mr. Gallup was reading how the life of a man who had fallen on a pitchfork had been saved by Persian stomach bitters, and his ears were closed.

"As to buryin me in the back yard, of course you kin do as you think best. In one way it will save you $5, and in another it'll take up ground fur cabbages. You'll marry ag'in, of course, and your second wife will want a hammock out under the trees. Mebbe she'll object to my grave. If I was your second wife, I wouldn't object to your first wife's grave, but I'm different from most women. You'd better think the thing over purty seriously. And there's another thing, Samuel. A long time ago I told you that if you ever got married ag'in I'd haunt you. I was mad and said more'n I ought to. Of course I could come back as a ghost and roost on the footboard of the bed and keep you awake nights, and I could hide down cellar and skeer you most to death when you come down after cider, but I'm not that kind of woman. Right here and now I want to tell you that I'll never haunt you nor your second wife. Don't you think I'm purty good, Samuel?"

Mr. Gallup had finished the pitchfork testimonial and struck one where a man had been blown up with a stump, and he was so interested that he didn't hear her question. She wept for three or four minutes and then said:

"No, don't go to any unnecessary expense to lay away my mortal remains, Samuel. As my speerit will be flyin around in heaven, it won't make no great difference about my body. When Mrs. Thompson died, she wanted a funeral to cost $250, but I'm not Mrs. Thompson. You'll marry again, of course, and you'll need all your money to flam out with. Second wives allus flam. Yours will want a new dishpan, new curtains, new knives and forks and as many as three new tablecloths the very fust thing. Speakin of tablecloths, Samuel, I've made the last new one last seven years. I don't expect any praise fur it, but when your second wife shakes one all to pieces in six months you'll see a difference. What kind of a second wife are you goin to marry, Samuel? You needn't be afraid to tell me, fur there isn't a jealous hair in my head. Will she be old or young?"

Mr. Gallup yawned and stretched and thrust out his legs, but he had nothing to say.

"Mrs. Roedecker says you'll probably marry a young chit of 17, and Mrs. Jackson says you'll probably look fur a widder with as many as five cows, but I ain't goin to find no fault in either case. On the contrary, I kinder pity you. Second wives allus smash and break and bust things, and if you say anything they'll sass back and pull hair. You'll be rid of me and my troubles, Samuel, but there'll be times when you'll sit down on the wash bench outdoors and wish I was back. Yes, you'll acknowledge to yourself that I was hardworkin and savin and that I was no hand to gad about, but I'll be an angel, and you'll hev to plug along the best you kin without me. That's all, Samuel, and I will now die and hev it over with."

She stretched out on the lounge and folded her hands and closed her eyes, and for ten minutes there was silence. Then Mr. Gallup yawned again, looked around and saw her there, and as he rose up to wind the clock and go to bed he observed:

"You'd better turn the cat outdoors and see if the kitchen window is fastened up."

Then Lieutenant Jones stepped out and commenced to read the riot act to the men behind the armory walls, and, though they kept shooting at him, his voice never wavered, nor did he show any other sign of trepidation. NEUROPATHY.

Teddy, the infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Collins, Wheeling, where the father is engaged at La Belle, is a living example of the power of neuropathy. Infantile paralysis had destroyed the use of the right leg, and the little one was unable to walk. Twelve treatments have been given the bright youngster, one taking place this morning, and the boy trotted gleefully across the room to his grandfather, Stewart Collins, the only artificial help made use of being a small brace, inside the shoe, to strengthen the ankle. This cure is simply a marvelous one.

THE GALLUP FAMILY

AN EVENING OF ONE SIDED TEARS AND LAMENTATIONS.

Mrs. Gallup Gives Her Silent Husband Some Instructions and Advice About Her Own Funeral and the Wife That Will Succeed Her.

[Copyright, 1900, by C. B. Lewis.]

Mr. Gallup had gone down town after supper to hear the political news, and it was 9 o'clock when he got back home. He had left Mrs. Gallup clearing away the dishes and singing "Happy Day," but when he returned she was lying on the lounge with her eyes closed and the house quiet as a graveyard. He sat down after a glance at the figure and laboriously untied his shoes and pried them off and then picked up the family almanac to see what time the moon would be in her last quarter. Ten minutes passed, and Mrs. Gallup uttered a long drawn sigh. Two minutes later she groaned. A minute after the groan, as Mr. Gallup had paid no attention to her, she sat up and said:

"Samuel, you've come here jest in time. I was afraid I'd hev to go without biddin you goodby, but you are here. You hadn't been gone from the house ten minits when I went to carry the milk down cellar. I wasn't thinkin of death or anything of that sort when all to once I heard a voice sayin, 'Git ready to soar away and become an angel.' You may tell me, Samuel, that it was the vinegar bar'l workin or that it was a-gurglin from the soft soap, but I know better. It was my summons to go, and I come right up stairs and begun to git ready. It won't disturb you much if I die tonight, will it?"

Mr. Gallup didn't reply. He had found the moon's last quarter and was deeply interested.

"I've never bin no hand to make you trouble, Samuel," she continued, "and I shan't begin now. If you'd rather I'd die in the daytime, I'll try and hold on, though I s'pose one ought to die when the hour comes. Mebbe you've bin thinkin that when I died you'd hev to pay out a great lot of money over the funeral, but I want you to know different. I've never bin an extravagant woman, and I kin git along with a cheap funeral. I was reckonin it up t'other day, and I was surprised and pleased with the figgers. Do you know, Samuel Gallup, that the hull thing, from fust to last, won't cost a cent over $30?"

One of Mr. Gallup's eyebrows was slightly raised in a questioning manner, but he made no verbal reply.

"Only $30, Samuel, and that includes one of the best lots in the graveyard. If you wanted to bury me out in the back yard, the cost would be reduced to $25, and I don't think any husband on earth kin complain of that. There are wives who'd kick ag'in bein buried in the back yard, but I shan't say a word. And I've arranged other things fur you, Samuel. While you've bin busy with politics and lawsuits I've bin arrangin fur death. In about an hour from now, when I breathe my last, you'll go over and rap three times on Mrs. Watkins' door. Three raps mean that I hev soared away, and she'll be over in ten minits to take charge. Then you kin go right to bed and go to sleep, same as usual. The funeral will take place the day after. Mrs. Green will lend you 14 chairs, and Mrs. Taylor will pick out the hymns to be sung. Mrs. Jordan will milk our cow and strain the milk, and Mrs. Johnson will come over and git your meals. Are you listenin to me, Samuel?"

If he was, there were no signs of it. He had got through with the moon and passed on to the medical testimonials, and he seemed to be reading with bated breath.

"All you'll hev to do," she continued after a sob or two, "is to move about kinder sorrerfullike and shed a few tears. I've had 32 fits of sickness since we was married, and sometimes you've had to hire the washin done fur me; but, after all, you'll be kinder sorry when I'm gone. You'll remember how I made one teakettle last 14 years and how I allus made the tea and sugar last longer than any other woman in town. I shan't ask you to break down and weep, Samuel, but if I was you I'd shed tears. I not only deserve 'em, but all the folks will be watchin you to see if you are affected. You've got six handkerchiefs almost as good as new, and you won't run short even if you shed tears from both eyes. Don't you think I'm right, Samuel?"

She wiped her tears and held back her sobs and waited for a reply, but none came. Mr. Gallup was reading how the life of a man who had fallen on a pitchfork had been saved by Persian stomach bitters, and his ears were closed.

"As to buryin me in the back yard, of course you kin do as you think best. In one way it will save you $5, and in another it'll take up ground fur cabbages. You'll marry ag'in, of course, and your second wife will want a hammock out under the trees. Mebbe she'll object to my grave. If I was your second wife, I wouldn't object to your first wife's grave, but I'm different from most women. You'd better think the thing over purty seriously. And there's another thing, Samuel. A long time ago I told you that if you ever got married ag'in I'd haunt you. I was mad and said more'n I ought to. Of course I could come back as a ghost and roost on the footboard of the bed and keep you awake nights, and I could hide down cellar and skeer you most to death when you come down after cider, but I'm not that kind of woman. Right here and now I want to tell you that I'll never haunt you nor your second wife. Don't you think I'm purty good, Samuel?"

Mr. Gallup had finished the pitchfork testimonial and struck one where a man had been blown up with a stump, and he was so interested that he didn't hear her question. She wept for three or four minutes and then said:

"No, don't go to any unnecessary expense to lay away my mortal remains, Samuel. As my speerit will be flyin around in heaven, it won't make no great difference about my body. When Mrs. Thompson died, she wanted a funeral to cost $250, but I'm not Mrs. Thompson. You'll marry again, of course, and you'll need all your money to flam out with. Second wives allus flam. Yours will want a new dishpan, new curtains, new knives and forks and as many as three new tablecloths the very fust thing. Speakin of tablecloths, Samuel, I've made the last new one last seven years. I don't expect any praise fur it, but when your second wife shakes one all to pieces in six months you'll see a difference. What kind of a second wife are you goin to marry, Samuel? You needn't be afraid to tell me, fur there isn't a jealous hair in my head. Will she be old or young?"

Mr. Gallup yawned and stretched and thrust out his legs, but he had nothing to say.

"Mrs. Roedecker says you'll probably marry a young chit of 17, and Mrs. Jackson says you'll probably look fur a widder with as many as five cows, but I ain't goin to find no fault in either case. On the contrary, I kinder pity you. Second wives allus smash and break and bust things, and if you say anything they'll sass back and pull hair. You'll be rid of me and my trubbles, Samuel, but there'll be times when you'll sit down on the wash bench outdoors and wish I was back. Yes, you'll acknowledge to yourself that I was hardworkin and savin and that I was no hand to gad about, but I'll be an angel, and you'll hev to plug along the best you kin without me. That's all, Samuel, and I will now die and hev it over with."

She stretched out on the lounge and folded her hands and closed her eyes, and for ten minutes there was silence. Then Mr. Gallup yawned again, looked around and saw her there, and as he rose up to wind the clock and go to bed he observed:

Lieutenant Jones' Nerve.

"The nerviest act I know of," said a Kansas man while discussing the world's brave deeds, "was performed by Lieutenant Jones of the company of marines that took John Brown at Harper's Ferry. Robert E. Lee had advanced his 90 marines in a semicircle about the armory in which Brown and his men had taken refuge. Then Lieutenant Jones stepped out and commenced to read the riot act to the men behind the armory walls, and, though they kept shooting at him, his voice never wavered, nor did he show any other sign of trepidation. I was in that company of marines."—Kansas City Journal.

THE IRISH PEASANT.

He Is the Gayest Fellow In the World Under Difficulties.

The Irish peasant is still, thank heaven, what Sir Walter Scott called him after the visit of the great novelist to Ireland in the early thirties—he is still "the gayest fellow in the world under difficulties and afflictions." He has a cheerful way of regarding circumstances which to others would be most unpleasant and disheartening. A peasant met with an accident which resulted in a broken leg. The neighbors of course commiserated him. "Arrah," he remarked, with a gleam of satisfaction in his eye as he regarded the bandaged limb, "what a blessing it is that it wasn't me neck."

Yes, the irrepressible Irishman has a joke for every occasion. Two countrymen who had not seen each other for a long time met at a fair. They had a lot of things to tell each other. "Shure it's married I am," said O'Brien. "You don't tell me so!" said Blake. "Faith, yes," said O'Brien, "an I've got a fine, healthy bhoy which the neighbors say is the very picter of me." Blake looked for a moment at O'Brien, who was not, to say the least, remarkable for his good looks, and then said, "Och, well, what's the harrum so long as the child's healthy?" And yet a peasant to whom a witticism thus spontaneously springs may be very simple minded.

The peasants' passion for rhetoric still induces them to commit to memory imposing polysyllables which they often misapply, with the most amusing and grotesque results. I heard a nursemaid exclaim at a crying child in her arms, "Well, of all the ecclesiastical children I ever met you're wan of thim." A landlord in the south of Ireland recently received a letter from a tenant in the following terms:

Yer Honnor—Hopin this finds you in good health, as it laves me at present, your bulldog Bill has assassinated me poor ould donkey.

COTTON BALE TRUST.

SENATOR JONES DODGES BEHIND THE PATENT LAW,

And Declares It Is Not a Trust—But It Has a Monopoly of the Best Baling Process, and Compels Cotton Planters to Pay Its Own Price.

At length after many months prodding, Chairman Jones of the Democratic national committee has said a word about his round cotton bale concern. He declares that the American Cotton company is not a trust, and that "any statement made by anybody that I am in any way connected with or interested in any organization that is in any sense a trust is absolutely untrue." These are Mr. Jones' words, but his corporation has carefully kept away from the courts of Texas, where they are trying to find out whether it is a trust or not. The Democratic chairman from Arkansas shouldn't be afraid of the courts of the Democratic banner state.

Another point: If the Jones concern is not a trust, then not one corporation out of a thousand talked about by Bryan deserves his denunciation. At Akron, Bryan referred directly to local establishments in that city, as if they were trust, without the least warrant of fact, and far less color for the statement, than there is in the cotton bale concern of his chairman, Jones. Not one of them has the benefit of a patent protection, which is the most absolute form of private monopoly possible in America, having the protection of all our legislation and of our courts, and without protest from any political party until Bryan's recent attacks, that included patent rights as things to be destroyed and swept away.

Jones himself has publicly pleaded that their cotton compressing concern has patent rights upon its round bale and the machinery for it, but withheld the further truth that this gave them an absolute monopoly upon this important devise in the handling of cotton, and thus compelled the entire cotton trade to pay tribute to Jones and his partner, Searles of the sugar trust. This is the same Searles, by the way, who got the benefit of the boost for the sugar trust of many million dollars given it in the Wilson tariff bill, that Bryan helped to put upon the statute books.

HIGHEST EVER KNOWN

In the Wage-Rate In Manufacturing and Mining In This Country Today.

Greater than ever before in the history of the United States is the relative rate of wages in manufacturing and mining in 1900, says an official report just prepared by Carroll D. Wright, national commissioner of labor. The pay is much higher than in 1899, which was the highest year since 1892—1891 being the basis of comparison. In '93, during the Democratic panic, wages began to drop, and decreased steadily for the next four year of Democratic rule, and in '97, upon McKinley's election, began to advance again. More important still is that there are more people at work at these better wages. Michigan alone reports 1,005 factories, not in existence in 1897, that now employ 23,000 people, with $1,500,000 yearly wages. Of the factories in operation the same general truth holds good. The best proof of it all is in the increased savings of the workingmen that is shown by their deposits, for physical needs have to be satisfied before there is a surplus for the savings banks. Yet in the last business year workingmen in Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Michigan, Wisconsin and Minnesota laid away $68,000,000 in the savings banks.

AN INSPIRATION.

It Showed the Bashful Youth a Happy Way to Pop the Question.

"So you got your courage up to the point at last?" said the friend who understood the situation.

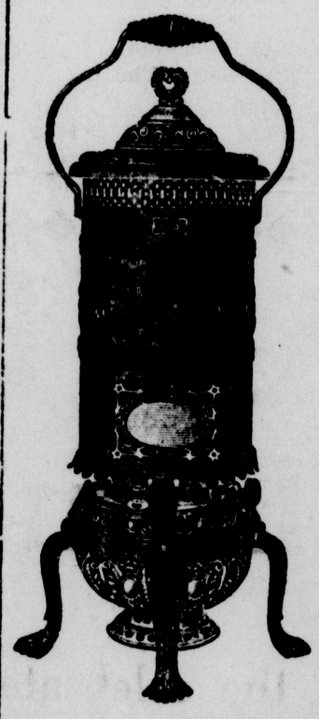

"Yes. Say, it isn't hard when you get started. But it is a wonder I didn't get nervous prostration before I made the plunge! I was six months trying to get courage enough to ask the all important question. But every time that I opened my mouth to speak I simply broke out into a cold sweat and couldn't say a word for the life of me. I would have retreated a dozen times bag and baggage if I could have done so gracefully. Not that I didn't want the girl, but simply for the reason that I despaired of ever being able to ask her to be mine. The girl acted, too, as if she had a right to hear something to the point. But I could only sit there like a chuckle headed idiot and abuse the weather. I would have been right there in the same horrible situation if something hadn't happened to break the ice.

"One night last week we were sitting side by side on a sofa and during one of those blissful moments when nothing was being said I chanced to notice the girl's eyes intently fixed upon a motto that hung on the wall opposite and which read, 'Love One Another.' I'll be hanged if I ever saw that motto before, but it gave me an inspiration, and I leaned over and murmured, 'Shall we?' and she murmured, 'I don't mind,' and it was all over but the shouting!"—Detroit Free Press.

They continued along the street until, coming opposite a plumber's shop with a big bill in the window with the words "Cast Iron Sinks" printed in large letters on it, he exclaimed: "Well, Jock, here's yin, that tells the truth at ony rate. But any danged fool kens that cast iron wad sink."

AN INSPIRATION.

"So you got your courage up to the point at last?" said the friend who understood the situation.

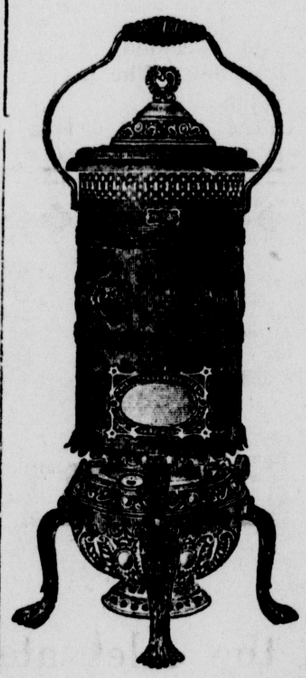

"Yes. Say, it isn't hard when you get started. But it is a wonder I didn't get nervous prostration before I made the plunge! I was six months trying to get courage enough to ask the all important question. But every time that I opened my mouth to speak I simply broke out into a cold sweat and couldn't say a word for the life of me. I would have retreated a dozen times bag and baggage if I could have done so gracefully. Not that I didn't want the girl, but simply for the reason that I despaired of ever being able to ask her to be mine. The girl acted, too, as if she had a right to hear something to the point. But I could only sit there like a chuckle headed idiot and abuse the weather. I would have been right there in the same horrible situation if something hadn't happened to break the ice.

"One night last week we were sitting side by side on a sofa and during one of those blissful moments when nothing was being said I chanced to notice the girl's eyes intently fixed upon a motto that hung on the wall opposite and which read, 'Love One Another.' I'll be hanged if I ever saw that motto before, but it gave me an inspiration, and I leaned over and murmured, 'Shall we?' and she murmured, 'I don't mind,' and it was all over but the shouting!"—Detroit Free Press.

It Told the Truth.

A countryman on a visit to Glasgow, while walking along Argyle street reading the signboards and the tickets in the shop windows, said to his companion: "Hoo can a' thae ham shops be the best and cheapest? Every yin o' them says that, and the same wi' the clothes shops tae. They are jist a lot o' leears."

They continued along the street until, coming opposite a plumber's shop with a big bill in the window with the words "Cast Iron Sinks" printed in large letters on it, he exclaimed: "Well, Jock, here's yin, that tells the truth at ony rate. But any danged fool kens that cast iron wad sink."

THE IRISH PEASANT.

The Irish peasant is still, thank heaven, what Sir Walter Scott called him after the visit of the great novelist to Ireland in the early thirties—he is still "the gayest fellow in the world under difficulties and afflictions." He has a cheerful way of regarding circumstances which to others would be most unpleasant and disheartening. A peasant met with an accident which resulted in a broken leg. The neighbors of course commiserated him. "Arrah," he remarked, with a gleam of satisfaction in his eye as he regarded the bandaged limb, "what a blessing it is that it wasn't me neck."

Yes, the irrepressible Irishman has a joke for every occasion. Two countrymen who had not seen each other for a long time met at a fair. They had a lot of things to tell each other. "Shure it's married I am," said O'Brien. "You don't tell me so!" said Blake. "Faith, yes," said O'Brien, "an I've got a fine, healthy bhoy which the neighbors say is the very picter of me." Blake looked for a moment at O'Brien, who was not, to say the least, remarkable for his good looks, and then said, "Och, well, what's the harrum so long as the child's healthy?" And yet a peasant to whom a witticism thus spontaneously springs may be very simple minded.

The peasants' passion for rhetoric still induces them to commit to memory imposing polysyllables which they often misapply, with the most amusing and grotesque results. I heard a nursemaid exclaim at a crying child in her arms, "Well, of all the ecclesiastical children I ever met you're wan of thim." A landlord in the south of Ireland recently received a letter from a tenant in the following terms:

Yer Honnor—Hopin this finds you in good health, as it laves me at present, your bulldog Bill has assassinated me poor ould donkey.

Unable to Sleep Last Night and It Is Still Giving Him Much Pain.

IT TOOK PLACE YESTERDAY

Albert Geon met with an accident yesterday afternoon that is causing him much today.

Mr. Geon and W. H. Gass left this city yesterday afternoon about 3:20 o'clock for Wellsville in charge of Motorman George Hale. Just beyond the watering trough the car jumped the track, running the entire length of the car and then swinging around. When the car turned Mr. Geon, who was sitting in the rear seat, was thrown across the car, striking his left leg on the iron braces of a seat and it was about 15 minutes before he was able to place his foot on the ground.

He returned to the city and went to the office of Dr. James Taylor, who said it would be impossible to tell how bad the leg was injured for a few days.

He is unable to use the leg today, and was unable to sleep last night on account of the accident.

Wellsville High School Foot Ball Eleven Failed to Keep a Promise.

Once more has the Wellsville high school football eleven fluked, and although the local high school boys had advertised the game for this afternoon and had spent some money, it made no difference to the Wellsville players and they telephoned this morning that they couldn't play here.

KING WAS ASLEEP IN THE ALLEY

Two Young Men Feared He Would Freeze to Death and They Took

HIM TO THE CITY JAIL

Claims He Is Shy at Least $18 but Don't Know Who Took It.

HE WAS FINED $1 AND COSTS

Last night two young men found Charles King drunk and asleep in the alley between Second and Third street. They were afraid he would freeze to death and gathered him up and took him to city hall, where he was locked up in the city jail.

This morning when King appeared before his honor he stated that he had between $15 and $18 when he got drunk, and as he was completely broke he would like to know where the cash went to. The young man who had been seen taking King in the alley was brought to the office and explained that he had taken King there for the purpose of getting him off the streets.

He told such a straightforward story that it was decided that if King had any money this man did not get it. The mayor then proceeded to fine King $1 and costs.

He didn't have the money to pay his fine and is still in jail waiting for some person to come to his relief.

T. Doyle, who was arrested yesterday by Officer Morris and Fireman Wood, was given a hearing yesterday and was fined $1 and costs. He is still in jail, but will probably be released before the day is over.

Charles McGavern, who was arrested for using profanity at the corner of Fifth and Market streets, put up security for his appearance and will call on the mayor today and fined out how much he owes the city.

TWO MEN CAUSED SOME EXCITEMENT

Dr. W. J. Taylor Rushed Up to Neal and Announced That He Had

POWER AS DEPUTY SHERIFF

Presumably Placed Him Under Arrest and They Went to an Office.

$1 25 BILL CAUSED THE TROUBLE

People on upper Washington street were startled at about 3:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon to see Dr. W. J. Taylor rush up behind F. M. Neal, and, laying his hand heavily upon his shoulder, declared in a loud voice that he was a deputy sheriff and would place him under arrest for obtaining money under false pretense.

Taylor conducted his prisoner up the stairs to the second story of the Hotel Grand building, and into the office of E. W. Hill, where for about an hour the two men indulged in some very strong language, in which dishonesty, fraud, thief, liar and many other like epithets played a prominent part.

As near as could be learned the whole affair was caused by Neal attempting to collect $1 25 claimed due for work.

Neal is a painter and had a contract with Taylor to paint a house in the alley between Third and Fourth streets, and was to receive $138 for the job.

When he had completed the job he was asked to go to Fourth street and paint the spouting on another house belonging to the doctor. For this work Neal presented a bill for $1 25, and yesterday afternoon went to the physician's office for the purpose of collecting it. Taylor fired him out, and not satisfied with this, followed him up Washington street and arrested him as stated above.

The doctor was very much excited, and after thinking the matter over concluded it might be best to pay the amount.

The two men furnished amusement for several persons while they accused each other of being dishonest. Meanwhile every one was trying to figure out how a man could be arrested for obtaining money under false pretense until he got the money.

Taylor finally asked that a receipt be made out for $1 25, which was done, and as he brandished the coin in the air, declared in a tragic manner that it was "the dishonestest" money he ever paid.

SOME MORE LIGHT ON GREEN STORY

SHE DON'T BELIEVE STORY

That the Shooting Was Accidential but Thinks a Jealous Man Did It.

FULL HISTORY OF THE EPISODE

The article is as follows:

Another chapter was added in the West Main street shooting affair this morning, when Mrs. Mary E. Green, of 128 Locust alley, East Liverpool, arrived in the city on the early train to search for her wayward daughter, Miss Laura Green, the 17-year-old girl who was shot in the left arm Monday morning in the wine rooms of the building leased by Kaplan & Margolies.

Mrs. Green called at the mayor's office to inquire about her daughter, but did not receive much information, as none of the officials knew much about the case.

Mrs. Green stated to a Herald reporter this morning that her daughter was supposed to have eloped with Harry Cunningham, a married man of East Liverpool, last July. Since that time Mrs. Green's efforts to find her erring daughter have been futile.

Yesterday she learned for the first time that her daughter was in Salem, when she read an article in an East Liverpool paper, telling of the shooting affair. The article had been copied from the Herald. Mrs. Green telephoned to the Broadway hotel last night and asked for her daughter. Miss Green was there, but refused to talk to her mother. This made Mrs. Green decide to come to Salem and get her daughter, if possible. She left East Liverpool at 5 o'clock this morning.

Today Mrs. Green said that Cunningham had been intimate with her daughter since she was 14 years old, having known him since childhood. Cunningham, who is a "batter out" at the pottery, was married about four years ago to an estimable young lady. Their married life was unhappy, and they have since separated. Last spring Cunningham and Miss Green worked side by side in a pottery at East Liverpool. Their relations became so intimate that her mother took Laura away from the pottery. Cunningham, it is alleged, heard that Laura's mother intended to have him arrested. A few days later Cunningham and Miss Green were missing. When Cunningham was away before this time a secret correspondence is said to have been carried on between him and Miss Green.

This morning Mrs. Green, in company with a Herald reporter, paid a visit to the scene of the shooting affray. The shooting occurred in the wine rooms in Kaplan & Margolies, and not in the apartments of the family, who live overhead the saloon. In the apartment upstairs are three tables, some chairs and a bed. There are no other furnishings. The neighbors say this place is frequented by dissolute characters of the city, and fights are not infrequent.

A number of people were questioned about the affair, but little light was learned except what has already been published. The girls still claim that the shooting was accidental, and that Miss Maggie Miller did it. Other parties say that Miss Green told them it was a man from Sebring who shot her. Mrs. Green, mother of the girl, thinks it was Cunningham, but no evidence has been secured yet to go ahead with the case. Many conflicting stories are told.

Last night Miss Green slept at the residence of her friend, Miss Maggie Miller, in Hogan's alley, and left early this morning for her home in East Liverpool. At that place she was interviewed by a reporter. She still claimed that the shooting was accidental and said "Sidney" Miller, ex-manager of the Salem ball club, was in the room with his sister at the time of the shooting.

Mrs. Green blames Cunningham as the cause of her daughter's downfall, and did not hesitate to say that she disbelieved the story told her to the effect that Miss Miller had done the shooting accidentally, but clings to the belief that Cunningham in a fit of jealousy was the guilty one.

She left for her home in East Liverpool this afternoon.

The Elks Will Present "Arizona" to the East Liverpool Theater-Goers This Year.

The East Liverpool Elks have booked "Arizona" for their benefit this year, and it will appear at the opera house on February 7.

The play is from the pen of Augustus Thomas and is one of the best dramas of American life ever written. The Elks are to be congratulated on securing such a show.

Mr. Thomas is the author of "Alabama" and "In Missouri. "Arizona" is full of pathos and sentiment, and its success wherever it has appeared has been something wonderful.

NIGHT WORK FOR SCHOOL CHILDREN

Superintendent Samuel Andrews, of Pittsburg, Heartily Disapproves of the System.

HE GIVES GOOD REASONS

Children Should Not Be Worried With Thought of Study After School Hours.

THEY NEED SEVEN FREE HOURS

The following in regard to night work for school children will be read with interest by many people in this city:

The central board of education of Pittsburg last night approved the recommendation of the high school committee that the periods of study in the Southside high school be increased from three periods to four periods each day. This, in an indirect way, means the approval of the determination of Director C. B. Wood, of the Pittsburg Central high school, to do away with night study on the part of the students.

"The best children, the best citizens, the best people generally, are those who have a regular allottment of time for work, for recreation and for sleep." The speaker was Samuel Andrews, city superintendent of the Pittsburg public school.

"I mean best in a wholesale sense; best physically, mentally, morally. I am as thoroughly convinced that this division of time is a necessity for a perfect development as I am of the fact that food is required for the nourishment of the body. Our school children should have a certain number of hours for their mental work, they should have a certain number of hours for sleep, they should have at least seven absolutely free hours each day for recreation or duties the very opposite in every respect to those classed as work.

"If school hours are in excess of a fair allotment of the day, then it is a criminal proceeding to give a child even one study to prepare at home. If school hours are shorter than a fair working division of the time then one or two studies for home work might not come amiss.

"I am opposed to night study; strongly opposed. If I had my way I would eliminate every thought of school life from the home life of the child. It is not the work so much as the worry which is undermining the health of the children.

"A child who carries home a book and knows that a lesson is to be prepared, is burdened with a sense of that duty until he goes to bed. The thought of the lesson intrudes on his play hours, while he is doing his errands or little chores, while he is eating or apparently lazily lounging about.

"Who are the successful business men of the times, the best men physically, the hopeful and progressive citizen? Certainly not those who carry their business cares and worries into the heart of their homes. Recreation is not necessarily idleness. The boy who is not hampered with the thought of unprepared lessons will utilize his leisure time to suit his individual taste. He will be free to whittle, to construct, to plan, even to dream. He will become an individual instead of an overworked machine.

"In justice to our schools, I may say that we are lessening the night strain as fast as possible. In several schools the teachers understand that teachers that home work which imposes upon others of the family is a reflection upon the ability of the teacher. Tasks which can only be accomplished under direction and supervision esssentially belong to the school room. The parents are grasping this thought and the sensible teacher is quick to appreciate the situation. Mathematics is a study which is much abused as an assignment of night work. If night work must be given at all, which I greatly question in view of the fact that many of our more successful teachers have proved it unnecessary. I insist that it shall be memory or hand work, such as geography, history or drawing, and not the study that causes the more excessive mental strain and which at best is uncertain in results until a superior brain has passed upon its merits.

"I am heartily in accord with the spirit of the movement for the lessening of night study for the high school students. I hope the experiment will prove a success. It is only a question of time, however, until there is a total elimination of night work from the city schools. Public sentiment demands it and those at the helm are now devising ways and means of bringing about the reform."

Superintendent Jones, of the Cleveland schools, has started a similar reform in that city.

VASTNESS OF ST. PETER'S.

Large Objects Appear Small In the Great Cathedral.

During a recent ceremony in St. Peter's, Rome, one of the crystal chandeliers suspended from the ceiling began to creak ominously, and the people beneath it hastily scattered. In a moment the mass fell and was dashed into a thousand pieces on the floor below. In St. Peter's a few days before when the workmen were suspending these chandeliers they were taking them out of piles of numbered boxes, for St. Peter's, like a theater, has many "properties" and is decked in a different manner for its different ceremonials.

Cords run over pulleys fastened far up aloft, and with these the chandeliers were hoisted to their places. St Peter's is so enormous that the eye there is continually deceived. The chubby cherubs at the holy water font look to be the size of ordinary babies, yet they are nearly seven feet tall, and a man standing beside them looks like a dwarf. When the workmen were hoisting these chandeliers from the floor, a traveler noted with amazement that the masses of crystal were over eight feet high. Yet when hoisted to their places far up in the dim heights they looked about the size of a man's head.

Workmen in St. Peter's are called "sanpietrini." They take their name from the basilica "San Pietro"—"sanpietrino," plural "sanpietrini." They have a set of lofty scaffolds mounted on rollers. These they move from place to place about the vast church. They are not unlike our fire departments' water towers. Ladder after ladder runs up the scaffolding, and by their aid they reach places from 100 to 150 feet above the floor. Other ingenious scaffoldings are used for work on the inside of the dome. Seen up there the "sanpietrini" look like flies crawling on the ceiling. The top of the dome is about 400 feet above the floor.—St. Louis Republic.

Four to One.

An English officer in Malta stopped in riding to ask a native the way. He was answered by a shrug of the shoulders and a "No speak English."

"You're a fool then," said the officer.

But the man knew enough English to ask:

"Do you understand Maltese?"

"No."

"Do you know Arabic?"

"No."

"Do you know Italian?"

"No."

"Do you know Greek?"

"No."

"Then you four fools. I only one!"—Youth's Companion.

An Incredulous Lawmaker.

It is recalled that when the projecter of the railroad up Mount Washington sought a charter from the New Hampshire legislature one of the lawmakers, in his speech on the subject, said, "Give the fool permission, but he might as well ask for a railroad to the moon." But the railroad is still running to the Tip Top House.—Buffalo Commercial.

OFFICIAL PAPER OF THE CITY

FRIDAY, NOVEMBER 16, 1900.

DEAD LETTERS.

The Woman's Good Citizenship League has determined to see to the enforcement of the curfew law and the law regulating child labor, and will also take a hand respecting attendance of children at our public schools. Youngsters are said to be working in our potteries right along who are under the legal age, while the accusation is made on every hand that the truant officer of the city is very negligent respecting the performance of his duties, seeming to think that he can use his own pleasure as to enforcement or non-enforcement of the law controlling the matter. The members of the league have able backing from a legal standpoint, and they state that they will see that executive officers perform the duties assigned them by the legislative bodies, or know the reason why.

JOURNALISM.

The journal which persistently and wittingly advocates evil and evil practices has no right to live and prosper in a community which believes in the enforcement of law and order; and no such journal can prosper, save when weak kneed professors of right and truth wink at said evil practices and give aid and comfort and support to journals of such a despicable and disreputable nature. If you are an honest Christian man, or even a good and clean citizen, examine your skirts and see if they are clean respecting this matter. If not, then be a man and maintain your own self-respect and the commendation of the Master by making an immediate about face. Don't look too closely at the dollar; look at the principle at stake and do you full duty. God will reward you in his own good time.

VILE HUSBANDS.

There are several notable cases of vile and bad husbands on the list in this city at the present time; men who fondly imagine that their misdeeds are done in the dark and that no one is the wiser. We have one notable case where an employe of a business man who is thus carrying on his infamous work, and who is absolutely infatuated with a soiled dove, a prominent member of the demimonde, said: "Yes, all that you say about him is gospel truth, and he is going the pace to the limit. His inomarata is playing him for a sucker to the queen's taste, and she is making ducks and drakes of his bank account; but he pays me good money for my services, and I'm not going to make a monkey of myself and give him away. He'll reach the limit after awhile, as all the smart Alec's and sports do, and there will be a rich old scandal when his better half gets on to his little game. She's had her eyes opened a little of late, as her hubby has been unusually reckless. I'll hide under the counter in case she catches on when I'm about the establishment, as she is a regular volcano when her temper gains the ascendancy."

WOMAN'S LEAGUE.

The Woman's Good Citizenship League has lately been accumulating evidence along the line of the sale of intoxicants in East Liverpool on the Sabbath day, and there will be a shaking up among the dry bones in the near future that will not soon be forgotten. The ladies purpose working through the state authorities; and they will have ample backing at the proper time. It seems that there has been an efficient detective at work in this city for some time past, and the evidence he has secured will implicate parties who have made it their boast that they have always lived up to the law. The lightning will surely strike, and some who least expect it will be very badly scorched. It is said that some prominent business houses, other than saloons, will be embraced in the category of offenders, and that they will be compelled to go out of business altogether if full penalties are imposed for each and every offense in which they are found guilty. They have been carrying their pitchers to the well for a long time in safety, and the avoidance of trouble has caused them to become bold and reckless, and now they must face the music and pay the fiddler.

THE COAL TRADE.

The trade in black diamonds is marvelous. Mines that have been idle for years, and considered as almost worthless to the owners, have been opened up and are now working to the limit, and are proving to be good mines to the happy operators. One prominent coal dealer of East Liverpool sent an order for several car loads to a famous mining company, owning several mines, and received the reply that they could not let him have a single bushel and could not fill the orders already in. Buy a coal mine. It is better than oil or diamonds. One of the leaders of the coal trade in this country, owning seven thousand acres of coal, asserts that they will not sell a pound of their product to home consumers, as they have contracts with the foreign markets for every bushel that they can possibly mine. Surely coal is king, and McKinley prosperity has come to stay. The pushing industries demand fuel.

COURTS RULED BY SUN TIME

Judges In Various States Refuse to Accept Standard Reckoning.

If you ever expect to go to law over a question in which time is involved, however slightly, don't monkey with standard time. It won't go in the courts. To be sure, you can't catch trains if you don't use standard time to do it, but you will miss the verdict if you do. In Georgia the court of appeals decided that the use of standard time instead of sun time in regulating a trial was an error. In the particular case in question the sun time was faster than the railroad time, and a verdict was received after 12 o'clock on Saturday night by the sun time, though before 12 by standard time. It was decided that sun time should have been followed.

In Nebraska a certain summons was returnable before a justice at 10 o'clock a. m. The defendant failed to appear. The justice waited until 11 o'clock standard time, which was about half an hour faster than common time, and then gave judgment by default. The defendant appeared before 11 o'clock common time, and it was held that the judgment by default was pre nature and invalid.

In Iowa there was a question as to the expiration of an insurance policy, which by its terms extended until 12 o'clock at noon of a certain day. Fire broke out at about 11:45 o'clock a. m. of that day by common time and about two and a half minutes after 12 o'clock by standard time. The court held that the insurance was still in force. It did not appear that any statute had enacted any change in the ordinary rule which regards noon as the time when the sun crosses the meridian. There was evidence of the customary use of standard time at that place, but this was held not sufficient. The court says: "It was not only necessary to show the customary use of standard time, but that by custom of the place at 12 o'clock at noon meant at 12 o'clock standard time."—Chicago Inter Ocean.

Heavy Loads Carried by Italians Through New York's Streets.

It is no uncommon sight to see Italian women walking along the streets balancing burdens on their heads that the average man would prefer to have sent home on a truck. A few days ago one of these women passed through City Hall park. On her head she was carrying what appeared to be the entire woodwork from the interior of some house. The bundle was made up of eight pieces of hard wood, the shortest being fully 12 feet in length. Each piece was six inches in width and an inch thick. The woman steadied this burden with one hand, while in the other she carried what one would consider a good load for one person in the shape of a bundle of shorter pieces of wood.

As she turned into Center street, near Chambers, the end of the load of lumber on her head came in contact with the head of a man who was going in the opposite direction. In order to prevent hitting him too hard the woman tried to turn to one side, and as she did so her burden fell to the walk. In vain she tried to replace it on her head. At last two men took hold of it, one at each end. They found that even their combined strength was just sufficient to lift it up and place it on the woman's head again. When the wood was finally adjusted in a proper position the woman picked up her smaller bundle and started up Center street.—New York Times.

Acorns as Charming Ornaments.

Take a large acorn, suspend it by a thread so as to nearly touch the water in any glass vessel, set it upon your mantelshelf, bracket or table, and let it stand there for about two months without in any way interfering with it excepting to supply fresh water.

The acorn will burst, throw a root down into the water and a stem upward, sending out from the stem beautiful green leaves.—Home Notes.

Life Saving Pigs.

The Australian coasting steamer Kameruka, while going from Eden to Sydney, traveling at full speed, struck on a reef at Moruya head. There being no rockets on the ship, the captain tied a life line to some pigs which formed part of the cargo and had the animals put overboard. The pigs swam to the shore, taking the line with them, and by establishing communication every soul on board was rescued.

EX-OFFICIAL GONE.

Presley Hay Disappears From Findlay.

ALLEGED SHORT IN ACCOUNTS.

Had Been Three Times Elected Clerk, of of Hancock County (O.) Courts—Retired From Third Term in September—Court Had Hoped Relatives Would Settle.

Findlay, O., Nov. 16.—Presley Hay, three times elected clerk of the Hancock county courts, has disappeared. It is alleged that he is short in his accounts. Mr. Hay retired from his third term in September. The installation of his successor drew attention to the alleged shortage. The court, it is said, has been cognizant for some time of the matter, but hoped his relatives would supply any deficiency. The work of looking into the accounts has barely begun. Hay has a large family, who are social leaders.

AGREEMENT ON ARMOR.

Secretary Long Announces Arrangement With Carnegie and Bethlehem Companies—Large Amount Needed.

Washington, Nv. 16.—Secretary Long announced the conclusion of the long controversy over the price of armor plate for naval vessels, and an agreement with the Carnegie and Bethlehem companies for Krupp armor at $420 a ton, with the possible addition of royalty fees, making the maximum price $455.52 a ton.

The amount of armor involved is the largest ever placed at one time by the government up to 1896. It covers the armor for 17 ships now in various stages of construction, including eight battleships, six armored cruisers and three protected cruisers.

The Midvale company withdrew its bid.

House Destroyed by Gas Explosion—Others Injured.

Pitsburg, Nov. 16.—An explosion of natural gas in the house at No. 1010 Carson street, South Side, caused the fatal injury of one person, painful burns to two others, and the total destruction of a two-story brick dwelling. The following were injured:

Joseph Dobson, 38 years old; frightfully burned about the face and body; supposed to have inhaled the flames; will probably die.

Mrs. Annie Dobson, wife of Joseph Dobson; burned about the face and hands; her condition is serious, and she may not recover.

DEAD WOMAN IDENTIFIED.

Husband Believes Dr. Ahlstrom Drugged Her and Then Suicided.

New York, Nov. 16.—The woman who was found dead in a room in the Boulevard hotel, together with Dr. Ahlstrom, was identified as Mrs. Harry Gardner, of 109 West One Hundred and First street, the wife of a man who followed the races.

Mrs. Gardner's mother, it was learned, lived in Chicago. When the husband of the woman was found near his flat he said he was out looking for her, after he had failed to find her at home. When he saw her picture printed he identified it as that of his wife. The couple were married in 1893 and lived in Ohio before they went to Chicago. Gardner's brother was a patient of Dr. Ahlstrom. Gardner thought the doctor fond of his wife, but never suspected her fidelity. He believes she was lured to the hotel by Ahlstrom and drugged and that Ahlstrom becoming alarmed killed her. The autopsy showed that death in both cases was caused by gas asphyxiation.

THE PARSONS FACTION OFFICERS.

Birmingham, Ala., Nov. 16.—At a session of the Parsons wing of the Knights of Labor the following officers were elected:

O'Keefe, Birmingham, Ala.; J. A. Conner, Pittsburg, and W. B. Carr, of Washington, D. C. A. J. O'Keefe was elected editor of The National Journal, published at Washington, D. C. Henry A. Hicks, of New York, was expelled from the order on the allegation that he filled places of striking electricians in New York city with non-union men.

JAMES S. BARBER DEAD.

Mrs. McKinley's Nephew Expired of Typhoid Fever, at Hongkong—Was Connected With Navy.

Washington, Nov. 16.—News was received here of the death from typhoid fever of Mrs. McKinley's nephew, Assistant Paymaster J. S. Barber, at Hongkong. The news came in the form of a dispatch to the navy department from the commander of the Monterey, to which young Barber was attached.

News of the death was conveyed to the white house personally by Captain Cowles, acting chief of the navigation bureau, and caused great grief to Mrs. McKinley and the president.

Mr. Barber entered the Ohio volunteers at the outbreak of the Spanish war as a private, with his cousin, James McKinley, and was commended for gallant conduct. He was mustered out at the end of the war and when he recovered his strength, which had been shattered by the exposure and hard service to which he had been subjected, he was given a commission in the navy as an assistant paymaster. He was ordered to the Philippines at his own request, being attached to the Don Juan de Austria. Afterward he was transferred to the monitor Monterey, but in the summer his health again gave way and he had been lying ill with typhoid fever at Hongkong for several weeks past.

CARNEGIE'S NEW GIFT.

Announces He Will Present Pittsburg With a Technical School.

Pittsburg, Nov. 16.—Andrew Carnegie will now present Pittsburg with enough money to build and equip a technical school. At the banquet tendered him by President W. N. Frew, of the board of trustees of the Carnegie institute, at the Hotel Schenley last night, a letter to Mayor Diehl offering the gift was read. Mr. Carnegie offers to provide the money for the school, provided the city shall furnish the site. He also offers to endow the school with $1,000,000 5 per cent gold bonds, which would yield an income of $50,000.

Action Against Strong Executors.

New York, Nov. 16.—Judge Lacombe, of the United States circuit court, on the application of Eliza T. Griswold, of Philadelphia, granted a temporary injunction against Mary C. Strong, P. Bradley Strong and Albert R. Shattuck, individually and as executors and trustees of the will of the late William L. Strong, which restrains them from parting with or disposing of certain mortgages, bonds, stocks and other securities claimed by the complainant. The matter was later amicably adjusted and was said to be merely to protect property.

He Was Fresh.

"Have you any nice fresh eggs today?" asked the woman with business like ways.

"Madam," answered the man, who has just started in the grocery business, "permit me to remind you that nice eggs are necessarily fresh and fresh eggs are always nice. Moreover, if I have any, I have them today. My possession of eggs yesterday or tomorrow does not in the slightest degree affect the situation. Therefore, time being precious to a business man, I will simply content myself with replying that I have nice eggs."—Washington Star.

The Movements In Some Stocks—Total Exports For October Greater Than Ever In Country's History.

New York, Nov. 16.—General Electric Thursday duplicated its gain of Wednesday with another six point rise, carrying it o 160½ on he large earnings reported. Wednesday's strength in the coalers became largely localized in New Jersey Central, which was up at one time 4½ points on reports of coming increase in dividends. The movement of broadcast scope for the day was in the winter wheat, which advanced between 1 and 2 points all around on the good weather for the crop in that territory. The movement in Great Northern preferred and in Union Pacific was attributed to the report of a working agreement looking to the extension of traffic in each other's territory. Northern Pacific, after a rather slight advance, fell back to about Wednesday night's level. Consolidated Gas, Continental Tobacco, People's Gas, Tennessee Coal, Brooklyn Transit and some other specialties were strong in the same way. London bought a small number of stocks on balance.

Money was appreciably easier and a favorable bank statement on Saturday was beginning to be discounted. The sub-treasury operations have contributed about $2,500,000 to the market, by reason of the falling off in internal revenue colections and large disbursements for pensions. Reports from interior money markets are of easy conditions, due to a process of unloosening after the election, similar to that which occurred in the New York market. Arrivals of over $3,000,000 in Australian gold are expected in San Francisco in a few days, which can be made available by telegraphic transfer through the sub-treasuries to the cash reserves of New York banks. There is a feeling that the large war loans impending in England and Germany will probably not be offered early next year. The total exports, as well as the excess of exports, over imports for October was far greater than those for any previous month in the country's history, the excess of exports showing the astounding total of $92,475,226. The phenomenal cotton exports are largely responsible for this showing, but after allowing for this the gratifying fact is shown that the value of manufactured products exported shows an increase over October of last year of nearly $9,000,000.

The bond market was of the same character as the stock market, showing strength, but not at the high level of last week's activity. Total sales, par value, $2,760,000.

United States Refunding 2s and the 5s coupon declined 8 per cent and do registered and the old 4s ¼ per cent on the last call.

Kills the Song.

Clifton Bingham, the author of "In Old Madrid," "Love's Old Sweet Song" and "The Dear Homeland," once said: "The moment a song is put 'on the streets,' as we call it, it becomes tremendously popular. You hear it everywhere. Every boy hums it as he goes to school. It is played in every street. But my publisher shakes his head sadly when that day comes. It is generally the beginning of the end—a boom which dies away. People get tired of hearing the same song wherever they go, whatever the song may be, and the song of the barrel organ is not welcome in the drawing room. So that the putting of a song on the street organs means a fleeting fame, and then—well, too often an utter relapse and complete oblivion."

Morphy's Witty Comment.

Paul Morphy, the famous chess player, once attended church in New Orleans when the bishop of a foreign diocese was present. The young rector of the church had prepared a sermon in honor of his distinguished visitor in the delivery of which he tired every one except the bishop, who paid close attention. Part of the congregation left the church.

"Well," said Morphy, "that preacher is the first man I ever met who hadn't sense enough to stop when he had nothing left but a bishop."

WEALTHY HIS FOE.

Prof. Ross Driven From Stanford University.

ANOTHER TEACHER BIDS DEFIANCE

Says He Is Not Afraid of Standard Oil Company, Etc.—Dr. Jordan Says There Is No Reason to Believe the RichIn fluenced Mrs. Stanford.

Stanford University, Cal., Nov. 16.—Dr. Edward Ross, head professor in the department of economics and sociology at Stanford university, has resigned. In his formal letter of resignation he intimated that he was being forced out of the university by Mrs. Stanford, who has taken exceptions to statements made by him in his public address on sociological and economic questions. He further said that Mrs. Stanford was prompted by certain powerful persons and commercial interests in San Francisco. Several of the faculty have taken sides with Dr. Ross.

President Jordan said in part:

"There is not the slightest evidence that he is a 'martyr to freedom of speech.' Nor is there any reason to believe that his withdrawal has been due to any pressure of capital or any other sinister influence. I know that Mrs. Stanford's decision was reached only after long and earnest consideration and that its motive was the welfare of the university and that alone."

Upon being shown Dr. Jordan's statement, Dr. Ross dictated the following:

"Dr. Jordan knows vastly more than I do as to Mrs. Stanford's motives. It is absolutely certain, however, that the freedom of speech is involved, not in my appearance, personality or character, but solely my non-partisan scientific utterances have been the root of Mrs. Stanford's distrust of me."

Supplementing his former utterances upon the subject of Prof. Ross' dismissal, Dr. Howard addressed his class in history upon the matter, and his remarks form the most sensational statement that has yet been delivered in the Ross controversy. The entire hour of the class was given up to the discussion of "free speech." Dr. Howard arraigned the influences that brought about the dismissal of the professor. Prof. Howard concluded his speech with this sensational utterance:

"I do not bow down to Saint Market street. I do not doff my hat to the Six companier; neither am I afraid of the Standard Oil company."

NOBODY COULD SUCCEED MOODY.

Morgan's Tribute—It Is Understood He Will Take Up the Work.

East Northfield, Mass., Nov. 16.—Regarding reports that the Rev. G. Campbell Morgan, of the New Court Congregational church, of London, had been invited to come to this country and take charge of the Moody schools and so far as possible take up on all lines the work of the late Rev. Dwight L. Moody, A. P. Fitt, who married Mr. Moody's daughter, said that erroneous reports had been circulated and that there is to be no change whatever in the management of the schools, Will R. Moody remaining at the head of the Moody work in every particular.

New York, Nov. 16.—A dispatch to The World from London says: The Rev. G. Campbell Morgan was seen at his house on Muswell Hill and was asked if the report was true that he has agreed to be the successor in America of the late Dwight L. Moody. "The report is unfounded," Mr. Morgan answered. "Nobody could succeed him. Mr. William Moody, who is now in London, offered me the Northfield extension work in America, but I can say nothing more definite at present than that I have neither accepted nor refused the offer yet."

It is understood that Mr. Morgan ultimately intends to take Moody's position, but he is disposed to be very reticent.

PAN PRESBYTERIAN ALLIANCE.

Louisville, Ky., Nov. 16.—Distinguished laymen and clergymen of the Presbyterian church met at Warren Memorial church for the annual meeting of the western section of the executive committee of the Pan-Presbyterian alliance. About 35 members were present when Dr. R. P. Kerr, of Richmond, Va., called the meeting to order. The session was taken up by the reading of reports.

At the next session the reports read in the session before were discussed, special attention being given to the missionary report. A reception was given last night at the Warren Memorial church, which was followed by a mass meeting. The addresses and speakers were as follows:

"The Alliance and Its Work," Rev. Principal Caven, D. D., Toronto, president of the alliance; "The Denomination and the Church," Rev. B. P. Fullerton, D. D., St. Louis; "Religion and Education," Chancellor R. B. Fulton, D. D., of Oxford, Miss.; "The Presbyterian Pulpit and National Life," the Rev. J. T. Good, D. D., Reading, Pa.; "The Gospel in France," the Rev. C. M. D'Aubigue, Paris, France; "The Church and the Twentieth Century," the Rev. George F. Pentecost, D. D., Yonkers, N. Y.

MONEY FOR MISSIONS.

M. E. General Missionarp Society Voted Various Sums For Different Fields.

New York, Nov. 16.—At the meeting of the Methodist Episcopal general missionary committee some time was spent in receiving and acting upon the reports of the committees on appropriations for mission fields.

For Southern Asia it was voted to devote these amounts: For North India, $54,000; for Northwest India, $25,000; for Bengal, $12,500; for South India, $20,000; for Bombay, $23,500; for Maylasia, $10,250; for Burmah, $5,277; for the Philippines, $2,000, with the recommendation that $8,000 in addition be asked for out of the thank offering; also $3,000 for North India out of the thank offering.

The report on South America, which was adopted, was for the South America conference, $45,271; for the West South America conference for Chili, $19,202.52; for Lima, $9,713.

It was voted to apply $5,000 of the entire appropriation and the amount of the sale of property in Brazil to the reduction of the debt and to turn over to the board an overdrawn account of $6,000. It was decided to turn over the mission work in Brazil to the Methodist church south.

The committee voted to give Africa $29,868, divided as follows: Liberia, $9,855; East Central Africa, $10,625; West Central, $9,388. It was voted also to add to this amount $25,000, provided that it could be raised.

Previous to the above business, the consideration of the proposed reduction of $25,000 in the money for the foreign missionary field was taken up. It was decided to make this reduction so as to distribute it over the entire appropriation for home and foreign fields, which is about $1,200,000. Of this latter sum the foreign field gets 57 per cent, or about $614,607; the balance, or about $463,658, goes to the home field.

TUAN'S NOBLE RELATIVE.

Rev. Morgaa Said Gov. Tuan Saved Missionaries Lives, Although Ordered to Kill All Foreigners.

London, Nov. 16.—The Rev. Evan Morgan, the last foreigner to leave Sian Fu, has arrived here. His life and the lives of the other missionaries in Shen Si province were saved by Governor Tuan, a kinsman of the notorious Prince Tuan. Governor Tuan, when he received a decree from Pekin to kill all foreigners, warned Mr. Morgan and his colleagues and gave them an escort. Mr. Morgan describes the governor as a "brave, friendly and noble man, who, at the risk of his life, saved us—the only foreigners left in Shen Si."

DELIRIUM ON FIRST AWAKENING.

Feature of Davis' Case—Family Prepared For Worst, Although Hopeful.

St. Paul, Minn., Nov. 16.—A feature in the case of United States Senator Davis is the slight delirium on first awakening. The immediate family is prepared for the worst outcome, although hopeful of the possible turn for the better, which seems to appear in any favorable symptoms. Thus far this week has been full of anxiety, and they appreciate to the full the hard struggle for existence now being made. Mrs. Davis scarcely leaves her husband's bedside save for a few hours of necessary sleep, always being within call. Her sisters, Mrs. Tripp and Mrs. Morrell, remain constantly in the house, and in adition to taking the cares of the house from Mrs. Davis and helping the nurses, do all in their power to cheer the aged parents of the senator.

CROKER FOR REFORM.

Tells Tammany to Make War on Vice.

A COMMITTEE IS APPOINTED.

New York, Nov. 16.—The executive committee of Tammany hall held a meeting, at which Richard Croker bade all the leaders goodby and took a hand in starting a movement to ric the city of vice. In a little speech the Tammany leader said he was going to Europe for health, not pleasure and introduced Isidor Straus, president of the educational alliance, as a man who was acquainted with the condition of things on the East Side, adding:

"I hope you will give attentive hearing to his statements of the condition of vice that exists there and that after you have heard what he has to say you will use your every effort to correct those evils as far as lies in your power."

Mr. Straus said he had met Mr Croker at dinner accidentally and had talked with him for two hours over the conditions in the East Side and Mr. Croker had asked him to talk to the executive committee of Tammany hall, and then addressing the committee, Mr. Straus told of what was needed on the East Side to suppress crime. He said that he, as a Democrat, had frequently cast up to him the statement that Tammany hall receives the greater parts of its revenue from people in these evil conditions of life and that no good can be accomplished unless the power of Tammany hall is destroyed. Mr. Straus had repeated this to Mr. Croker and the latter asked him to come before the committee with the statement and had promised his aid.

Lewis Nixen then, by resolution, had a committee of five appointed to "investigate the moral conditions of the city and to receive and suggest remedies for the corrections of abuses."

Mr. Nixon was made chairman and the other members are George C. Clausen, president of the park board; Colonel Michael C. Murphy, president of the health board; John J. Scannell, fire commissioner, and John W. Keller, charities commissioner.

Mr. Croker then arose and said:

"I have nothing to add to what has been said to you by Mr. Straus, because he is familiar wiht the matters on which he has spoken to you. I hope that this entire committee will give its full strength towards helping him and his work. We should heartily endorse his remarks and aid him in the work of crushing out this awful crime. And right here I want to reiterate what I said three weeks ago to you, and that is that not one dollar comes into my possession from landlords of pool rooms and houses of ill fame, and if any one of you gentlemen are collecting from any of these people you had better get out of the organization. It has no use for you. You are a disgrace to it. The organization can't and won't stand for any such thing."

The meeting broke up in confusion because of the attitude of Coroner Fitzpatrick, the Tammany leader in the Fourteenth assembly disrict, who denied that there were any disreputable houses in his district. He said that if there was vice there it was in tenement houses and could not be controlled. To this Mr. Croker excitedly replied that the coroner did not know what could be done until some effort was made.

RAILWAY DISASTER IN FRANCE.

13 Persons Dead, 5 Missing, Others Hurt. Peruvian Minister Killed.

Bayonne, France, Nov. 16.—The southern express was derailed between St. Georges and Saubesse, near Dax, about 33 miles northeast of Bayonne.

The restaurant car was precipitated over an embankment. Thirteen persons were killed and 20 others injured, seven seriously. Five passengers are missing.

The list of killed includes Senor J. F. Canevaro, Peruvian minister to France, and an attache of the Peruvian legation in Madrid.

YERKES WILL NOT CONTEST.

Again Appointed Internal Revenue Collector For Eighth Kentucky District.

Washington, Nov. 16.—John W. Yerkes, late Republican candidate for governor of Kentucky, was appointed collector of internal revenue for the Eighth district, which he refused when nominated for governor. He will assume his duties Nov. 20.

He said he had abandoned all idea of contesting Governor Beckham's election.

IN MEMORY OF DALY.

Helena, Mont., Nov. 16.—Memorial services for Marcus Daly, whose funeral took place in New York were held in nearly all the churches throughout the state, and business of all descriptions was suspended, including the operations of all the mines, smelters and mills of the Amalgamated Copper company. No such scenes of mourning and evidence of respect have ever been witnessed in the west before.

New York, Nov. 16.—The funeral of Marcus Daly, the dead millionaire, took place at noon in St. Patrick's cathedral. Archbishop Corrigan officiated, assisted by Father Lavelle and Bishop Blondell, of Montana. The services were simple and unostentatious, which fulfilled the wishes of the dead man.

Mr. Daly's family and many friends and business associates attended the obsequies. The pallbearers were John B. Haggin, John W. Mackay, Henry H. Rogers, William L. Bull, Hugh J. Grant, John A. Sullivan, president of the Catholic club; Hosmer V. Parsons, vice president of the Wells Fargo company, and William Scallon, Mr. Daly's attorney at Butte.

After the services at the cathedral the body was taken o Greenwood cemetery and placed temporarily in the John W. Mackay mausoleum, pending the decision of the family upon a place of burial.

TO AVOID A LYNCHING.

Denver, Nov. 16.—Sheriff Freeman, of Lincoln county, decided not to take John Porter, the confessed murderer of little Louise Frost, to that county at present, for fear of a lynching.

Friends of the dead girl's family are deeply incensed and threats of violence against the sheriff are freely made. Thousands of people surrounded the city jail, but there was no indication of any motive other han curiosity. Later Porter was transferred to the custody of Sheriff Jones, of this (Arapahoe) county, and taken to the county jail.

Porter spent some time reading the Bible and praying. He expressed penitence for his crime, but retains remarkable nerve,

Miss Morgan Married.

New York, Nov. 16.—Miss Louise Pierpont Morgan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. Pierpont Morgan, was married in St. George's church, Stuyvesant street, to Robert Livingstone Satterlee, a lawyer of this city. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Dr. Rainsford, rector of St. George's. A reception followed at the house. The gifts were handsome.

Eben C. Jayne Dead.

Philadelphia, Nov. 16.—Eben C. Jayne, a nephew of Dr. David Jayne, of patent medicine fame, and who since 1866, when Dr. Jayne died, has been the head of the firm of Dr. Jayne & Son, succumbed to pneumonia. Mr. Jayne was 73 years of age.

BURNED DOWN.

VENOM'S CHICKEN COOP WENT UP IN SMOKE.

Fifteen Very Fine Plymouth Rocks Were Cooked With Their Feathers On.

C. S. Venom, of Carolina avenue, is —or was—the possessor of 15 very fine Plymouth Rock chickens, but they went up in smoke last night at a late hour.

Al McDonald and Charley Bowles were in Liverpool last night and returned home between 11 and 12 o'clock. McDonald had gone to an upstairs room to retire when he saw the blaze in the rear of the Venom house. He called to Bowles to inform the inhabitants of the house, which he did immediately.

It was discovered upon investigation that it was the chicken house that was on fire and within a very short space of time it was consumed, and with it every chicken owned by Venom.

Mr. Venom had placed a lantern in the coop for the purpose of keeping the chickens warm during the night, and in some manner it was overturned, setting fire to the building.

A. H. Stewart, a shoe dealer of New Cumberland, who was a defeated candidate at the Republican primary for sheriff, is closing out his business preparatory to moving to Pittsburg.

Mr. Stewart, according to the best informed politicians on this side of the river, contributed more than any other individual in Hancock county to the success of Mr. Allison, the Democratic nominee.

He has consequently earned the ill-will of a great many of the prominent Republicans of the county.

NO CARS.

From 7:50 this morning until 8:40 no car passed over the East Liverpool line east. In consequence a great many people who depend upon such accommodations as the company are able to furnish, to go to and from their work, were greatly inconvenienced.

Several teachers employed in the East End schools came near being too late to begin the sessions on time. As usual the atmosphere within the cars was frigid, causing a number of the passengers to suggest that the system be changed to a horse car line, as they would be better able to reach their destination on time.

ONE ON HIS FATHER.

Smart Youth Is Caught, Then Victimizes Parent.

The 12-year-old son of a Van Buren street fond parent recently became the proud possessor of some guinea pigs. A day or two after the same were safely corralled in a cage he went about bragging of his new acquisition among his playmates. Now, it seems these youngsters knew of a "sell" in which guinea pigs play a prominent part. They started to "hook" the youngster and caught him fast and hard.

He felt so bad about it that he started in turn to "sell" some one else. His father was the victim.

"Did you know, papa, that if you hold a guinea pig by the tail its eyes will drop out?"

His father laughed outright.

"Why, who in wonder told you such stuff, Louis?"

"The boys all say that," answered Louis, sober as a judge, "and it's so, yes, sir."

"Oh, nonsense," said his father, still laughing.

Just to humor the boy the father went out. In a moment he came back looking—well, looking just like a man that's been badly sold.

"The little rascal got me that time," he replied to a friend.

"But I don't see the point," said the friend.

"Don't you?"

"No."

"Well, guinea pigs have no tails."

Sure Enough.

A busy merchant who had not taken a vacation for years, in which time every other member of his family had enjoyed an annual outing, concluded to give himself a rest of a week or two and started for the mountains.

DEAR FRANK—Our house was entirely destroyed by fire last night. The children and I escaped unharmed. Come home at once. MARIA.

DEAR MARIA—What is the use of coming home when there is no home to come to? Take the children to mother's, stay there with them till I join you and don't worry. Affectionately,
FRANK.

MYLER GOT IT.

The Dog Case Had an Airing in the Court of Squire McLane Last Night.

The case of John Myler versus Harrison Lucas to obtain possession of a dog was set for trial at 1 o'clock yesterday afternoon in the court of Justice McLane, but owing to the absence of the main witness, who resides at Teagarten, and who had not arrived when the case was called, it was continued for one week.

Scarcely had the parties to the case gotten out of the office until the Teagarten man appeared. An attempt was then made to get the people together again, but it was late in the evening before Constable Miller succeeded in rounding them up.

At 8 o'clock the case was opened and it took but a short time to straighten matters out. Dickinson, the Teagarten man, testified that the dog was the same he had traded to Myler, and the court ruled that way.

TWO ACCIDENTS

Befell Clyde Huss While He Was at Work This Morning.

Clyde Huss, salesman at Joseph Bros., met with a slight accident this morning, which resulted in another and more serious one.

He was working about the front end of the store when he accidentally struck his elbow. He became very ill and after staggering a few steps fainted, falling with considerable force upon the edge of the table, striking his head.

A nasty gash was cut in his forehead. Dr. Clark was called upon to dress the wound, and it was found necessary to take several stitches in the cut before it could be closed.

NEUROPATHY.

Teddy, the infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Collins, Wheeling, where the father is engaged at La Belle, is a living example of the power of neuropathy. Infantile paralysis had destroyed the use of the right leg, and the little one was unable to walk. Twelve treatments have been given the bright youngster, one taking place this morning, and the boy trotted gleefully across the room to his grandfather, Stewart Collins, the only artificial help made use of being a small brace, inside the shoe, to strengthen the ankle. This cure is simply a marvelous one.

In the same court the case of J. K. Jones against John Blackmore for $35, claimed due for wages, was settled by plaintiff agreeing to compromise for $30, rather than to let the case take its legal course, which would necessitate his remaining in the city for 150 days.

THE GALLUP FAMILY

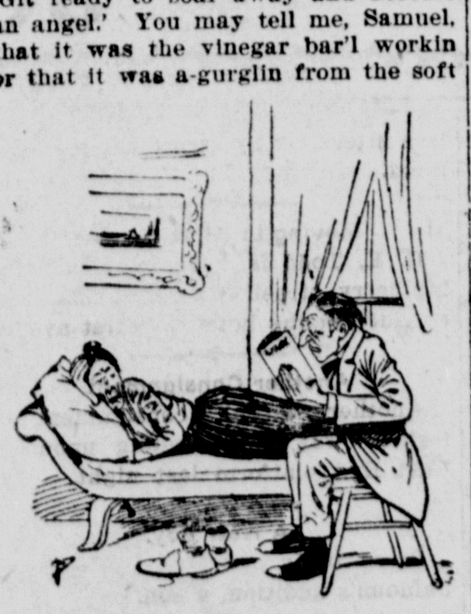

AN EVENING OF ONE SIDED TEARS AND LAMENTATIONS.

Mrs. Gallup Gives Her Silent Husband Some Instructions and Advice About Her Own Funeral and the Wife That Will Succeed Her.

[Copyright, 1900, by C. B. Lewis.]

Mr. Gallup had gone down town after supper to hear the political news, and it was 9 o'clock when he got back home. He had left Mrs. Gallup clearing away the dishes and singing "Happy Day," but when he returned she was lying on the lounge with her eyes closed and the house quiet as a graveyard. He sat down after a glance at the figure and laboriously untied his shoes and pried them off and then picked up the family almanac to see what time the moon would be in her last quarter. Ten minutes passed, and Mrs. Gallup uttered a long drawn sigh. Two minutes later she groaned. A minute after the groan, as Mr. Gallup had paid no attention to her, she sat up and said:

"Samuel, you've come here jest in time. I was afraid I'd hev to go without biddin you goodby, but you are here. You hadn't been gone from the house ten minits when I went to carry the milk down cellar. I wasn't thinkin of death or anything of that sort when all to once I heard a voice sayin, 'Git ready to soar away and become an angel.' You may tell me, Samuel, that it was the vinegar bar'l workin or that it was a-gurglin from the soft soap, but I know better. It was my summons to go, and I come right up stairs and begun to git ready. It won't disturb you much if I die tonight, will it?"

Mr. Gallup didn't reply. He had found the moon's last quarter and was deeply interested.

"I've never bin no hand to make you trouble, Samuel," she continued, "and I shan't begin now. If you'd rather I'd die in the daytime, I'll try and hold on, though I s'pose one ought to die when the hour comes. Mebbe you've bin thinkin that when I died you'd hev to pay out a great lot of money over the funeral, but I want you to know different. I've never bin an extravagant woman, and I kin git along with a cheap funeral. I was reckonin it up t'other day, and I was surprised and pleased with the figgers. Do you know, Samuel Gallup, that the hull thing, from fust to last, won't cost a cent over $30?"

One of Mr. Gallup's eyebrows was slightly raised in a questioning manner, but he made no verbal reply.

"Only $30, Samuel, and that includes one of the best lots in the graveyard. If you wanted to bury me out in the back yard, the cost would be reduced to $25, and I don't think any husband on earth kin complain of that. There are wives who'd kick ag'in bein buried in the back yard, but I shan't say a word. And I've arranged other things fur you, Samuel. While you've bin busy with politics and lawsuits I've bin arrangin fur death. In about an hour from now, when I breathe my last, you'll go over and rap three times on Mrs. Watkins' door. Three raps mean that I hev soared away, and she'll be over in ten minits to take charge. Then you kin go right to bed and go to sleep, same as usual. The funeral will take place the day after. Mrs. Green will lend you 14 chairs, and Mrs. Taylor will pick out the hymns to be sung. Mrs. Jordan will milk our cow and strain the milk, and Mrs. Johnson will come over and git your meals. Are you listenin to me, Samuel?"

If he was, there were no signs of it. He had got through with the moon and passed on to the medical testimonials, and he seemed to be reading with bated breath.

"All you'll hev to do," she continued after a sob or two, "is to move about kinder sorrerfullike and shed a few tears. I've had 32 fits of sickness since we was married, and sometimes you've had to hire the washin done fur me; but, after all, you'll be kinder sorry when I'm gone. You'll remember how I made one teakettle last 14 years and how I allus made the tea and sugar last longer than any other woman in town. I shan't ask you to break down and weep, Samuel, but if I was you I'd shed tears. I not only deserve 'em, but all the folks will be watchin you to see if you are affected. You've got six handkerchiefs almost as good as new, and you won't run short even if you shed tears from both eyes. Don't you think I'm right, Samuel?"

She wiped her tears and held back her sobs and waited for a reply, but none came. Mr. Gallup was reading how the life of a man who had fallen on a pitchfork had been saved by Persian stomach bitters, and his ears were closed.

"As to buryin me in the back yard, of course you kin do as you think best. In one way it will save you $5, and in another it'll take up ground fur cabbages. You'll marry ag'in, of course, and your second wife will want a hammock out under the trees. Mebbe she'll object to my grave. If I was your second wife, I wouldn't object to your first wife's grave, but I'm different from most women. You'd better think the thing over purty seriously. And there's another thing, Samuel. A long time ago I told you that if you ever got married ag'in I'd haunt you. I was mad and said more'n I ought to. Of course I could come back as a ghost and roost on the footboard of the bed and keep you awake nights, and I could hide down cellar and skeer you most to death when you come down after cider, but I'm not that kind of woman. Right here and now I want to tell you that I'll never haunt you nor your second wife. Don't you think I'm purty good, Samuel?"

Mr. Gallup had finished the pitchfork testimonial and struck one where a man had been blown up with a stump, and he was so interested that he didn't hear her question. She wept for three or four minutes and then said:

"No, don't go to any unnecessary expense to lay away my mortal remains, Samuel. As my speerit will be flyin around in heaven, it won't make no great difference about my body. When Mrs. Thompson died, she wanted a funeral to cost $250, but I'm not Mrs. Thompson. You'll marry again, of course, and you'll need all your money to flam out with. Second wives allus flam. Yours will want a new dishpan, new curtains, new knives and forks, and as many as three new tablecloths, and the very fust thing. Speakin of tablecloths, Samuel, I've made the last new one last seven years. I don't expect any praise fur it, but when your second wife shakes one all to pieces in six months you'll see a difference. What kind of a second wife are you goin to marry, Samuel? You needn't be afraid to tell me, fur there isn't a jealous hair in my head. Will she be old or young?"

Mr. Gallup yawned and stretched and thrust out his legs, but he had nothing to say.

"Mrs. Roedecker says you'll probably marry a young chit of 17, and Mrs. Jackson says you'll probably look for a widder with as many as five cows, but I ain't goin to find no fault in either case. On the contrary, I kinder pity you. Second wives allus smash and break and bust things, and if you say anything they'll sass back and pull hair. You'll be rid of me and my troubles, Samuel, but there'll be times when you'll sit down on the wash bench outdoors and wish I was back. Yes, you'll acknowledge to yourself that I was a hardworkin and savin and that I was no hand to gad about, but I'll be an angel, and you'll hev to plug along the best you kin without me. That's all, Samuel, and I will now die and hev it over with."

She stretched out on the lounge and folded her hands and closed her eyes and for ten minutes there was silence. Then Mr. Gallup yawned again, looked around and saw her there, and as he rose up to wind the clock and go to bed he observed:

Lieutenant Jones' Nerve.

"The nerviest act I know of," said a Kansas man while discussing the world's brave deeds, "was performed by Lieutenant Jones of the company of marines that took John Brown at Harper's Ferry. Robert E. Lee had advanced his 90 marines in a semicircle about the armory in which Brown and his men had taken refuge. Then Lieutenant Jones stepped out and commenced to read the riot act to the men behind the armory walls, and, though they kept shooting at him, his voice never wavered, nor did he show any other sign of trepidation. I was in the company of marines."—Kansas City Journal.

COTTON BALE TRUST.

SENATOR JONES DODGES BEHIND THE PATENT LAW,

And Declares It Is Not a Trust—But It Has a Monopoly of the Best Baling Process, and Compels Cotton Planters to Pay Its Own Price.

At length after many months prodding, Chairman Jones of the Democratic national committee has said a word about his round cotton bale concern. He declares that the American Cotton company is not a trust, and that "any statement made by anybody that I am in any way connected with or interested in any organization that is in any sense a trust is absolutely untrue." These are Mr. Jones' words, but his corporation has carefully kept away from the courts of Texas, where they are trying to find out whether it is a trust or not. The Democratic chairman from Arkansas shouldn't be afraid of the courts of the Democratic banner state.

Another point: If the Jones concern is not a trust, then not one corporation out of a thousand talked about by Bryan deserves his denunciation. At Akron, Bryan referred directly to local establishments in that city, as if they were trust, without the least warrant of fact, and far less color for the statement, than there is in the cotton bale concern of his chairman, Jones. Not one of them has the benefit of a patent protection, which is the most absolute form of private monopoly possible in America, having the protection of all our legislation and of our courts, and without protest from any political party until Bryan's recent attacks, that included patent rights as things to be destroyed and swept away.

Jones himself has publicly pleaded that their cotton compressing concern has patent rights upon its round bale and the machinery for it, but withheld the further truth that this gave them an absolute monopoly upon this important devise in the handling of cotton, and thus compelled the entire cotton trade to pay tribute to Jones and his partner, Searles of the sugar trust. This is the same Searles, by the way, who got the benefit of the boost for the sugar trust of many million dollars given it in the Wilson tariff bill, that Bryan helped to put upon the statute books.

HIGHEST EVER KNOWN

Is the Wage-Rate In Manufacturing and Mining In This Country Today.

Greater than ever before in the history of the United States is the relative rate of wages in manufacturing and mining in 1900, says an official report just prepared by Carroll D. Wright, national commissioner of labor. The pay is much higher than in 1899, which was the highest year since 1892—1891 being the basis of comparison. In '93, during the Democratic panic, wages began to drop, and decreased steadily for the next four year of Democratic rule, and in '97, upon McKinley's election, began to advance again. More important still is that there are more people at work at these better wages. Michigan alone reports 1,005 factories, not in existence in 1897, that now employ 23,000 people, with $1,500,000 yearly wages. Of the factories in operation the same general truth holds good. The best proof of it all is in the increased savings of the workingmen that is shown by their deposits, for physical needs have to be satisfied before there is a surplus for the savings banks. Yet in the last business year workingmen in Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Michigan, Wisconsin and Minnesota laid away $68,000,000 in the savings banks.

Her Choice.

Once upon a time a Young Person, by Dint of Frugality, had accumulated a Wad, and, the season of Millinery Openings having come, it was now Up to her.

"Shall I," she mused in no small anxiety, "make my Wad look like 30 cents, or shall I trim my own hat and thus make myself look like 30 cents?"

As the Shrewd Reader will doubtless have conjectured, the Upshot of the matter was that the Young Person purchased a Lovely Imported Creation, costing $50.—Detroit Journal.

AN INSPIRATION.

"So you got your courage up to the point at last?" said the friend who understood the situation.

"Yes. Say, it isn't hard when you get started. But it is a wonder I didn't get nervous prostration before I made the plunge! I was six months trying to get courage enough to ask the all important question. But every time that I opened my mouth to speak I simply broke out into a cold sweat and couldn't say a word for the life of me. I would have retreated a dozen times bag and baggage if I could have done so gracefully. Not that I didn't want the girl, but simply for the reason that I despaired of ever being able to ask her to be mine. The girl acted, too, as if she had a right to hear something to the point. But I could only sit there like a chuckle headed idiot and abuse the weather. I would have been right there in the same horrible situation if something hadn't happened to break the ice.

"One night last week we were sitting side by side on a sofa and during one of those blissful moments when nothing was being said I chanced to notice the girl's eyes intently fixed upon a motto that hung on the wall opposite and which read, 'Love One Another.' I'll be hanged if I ever saw that motto before, but it gave me an inspiration, and I leaned over and murmured, 'Shall we?' and she murmured, 'I don't mind,' and it was all over but the shouting!"—Detroit Free Press.

It Told the Truth.

Every yin o' them says that, and the same wi' the clothes shops tae. They are jist a lot o' leears."

They continued along the street until, coming opposite a plumber's shop with a big bill in the window with the words "Cast Iron Sinks" printed in large letters on it, he exclaimed: "Well, Jock, here's yin, that tells the truth at ony rate. But any danged fool kens that cast iron wad sink."

THE IRISH PEASANT.

The Irish peasant is still, thank heaven, what Sir Walter Scott called him after the visit of the great novelist to Ireland in the early thirties—he is still "the gayest fellow in the world under difficulties and afflictions." He has a cheerful way of regarding circumstances which to others would be most unpleasant and disheartening. A peasant met with an accident which resulted in a broken leg. The neighbors of course commiserated him. "Arrah," he remarked, with a gleam of satisfaction in his eye as he regarded the bandaged limb, "what a blessing it is that it wasn't me neck."

Yes, the irrepressible Irishman has a joke for every occasion. Two countrymen who had not seen each other for a long time met at a fair. They had a lot of things to tell each other. "Shure 't's married I am," said O'Brien. "You don't tell me so!" said Blake. "Faith, yes," said O'Brien, "an I've got a fine, healthy bhoy which the neighbors say is the very picter of me." Blake looked for a moment at O'Brien, who was not, to say the least, remarkable for his good looks, and then said, "Och, well, what's the harrum so long as the child's healthy?" And yet a peasant to whom a witticism thus spontaneously springs may be very simple minded.

The peasants' passion for rhetoric still induces them to commit to memory imposing polysyllables which they often misapply, with the most amusing and grotesque results. I heard a nursemaid exclaim at a crying child in her arms, "Well, of all the ecclesiastical children I ever met you're wan of thim." A landlord in the south of Ireland recently received a letter from a tenant in the following terms:

Yer Honnor—Hopin this finds you in good health, as it laves me at present, your bulldog Bill has assassinated me poor ould donkey.
